GERMAN FORCES IN BELGIUM EFFECT A JUNCTION

CLOSING IN ON WARSAW

German Forces Eight Miles From City.

WITHDRAW TO VISTULA

Russian Armies Have Railways at Their Back.

London, Oct. 17.—A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam says fugitives who have arrived at the Dutch frontier declare Ostend has fallen into the hands of the Germans.

The official communication issued by the French war office confirms the progress of the allies.

It is not indicated in the communication at what part of the coast the allies' fighting line reaches the sea, but the nearest point is twenty-two miles from Ypres and is close to the Franco-Belgian frontier.

Basel, Switzerland, again reports a defeat of the Germans in the Vosges. There is no mention of this rumor in the official communication, although such a defeat has been reported several times from unofficial sources.

Fulfillment of the promise that pressure would be taken off France and Belgium when the big battle commenced in the East again has been delayed. The Germans are before Warsaw—in fact fighting has taken place only eight miles from that city.

While their advance to the Niemen was a failure the forces of Emperor William apparently have retrieved some defeats of the Austrians in Galicia and advanced as far as Jaroslau, seventeen miles northwest of Przemyśl.

Plan to Outflank Russians.

The German plan seems to be to have two armies advance along the left bank of the Vistula river while two other armies swing around on the right bank to take the defenders of Warsaw on their flank. The Russians are said purposely to have withdrawn to the Vistula so that they would have the railways at their back while the Austro-German forces would have to advance great distances on roads which at this time of the year are little more than quagmires.

Both sides say they have gained advantages in the preliminary fighting, but these victories and defeats can have little effect on the general result of the battle in which it is estimated nearly 5,000,000 men are engaged. The Russians, it is said, have 2,500,000 men and the Austro-German force is declared to total nearly 2,000,000. The armies cover a front of nearly 300 miles.

The battle on the East Prussian frontier has ceased. The two armies are facing each other across the border, both doubtless being satisfied to remain where they are until the chief battle in Poland is decided. This may not be for months, although the Germans, it is said, will attempt to gain a quick victory to release their troops for the western campaign.

DRIVE GERMAN FROM LILLE

Allies Are Reported in Possession of the City.

London, Oct. 17.—It is reported that the Germans have been driven from Lille, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Boulogne under date of Friday. The Germans made a furious attack on Arras in an effort to recapture the city, according to a Reuters dispatch received here. The attack was made under cover of darkness Wednesday night, it was said, and was preceded by a heavy bombardment of several hours. The attack failed, however, and the French remained in possession of the position.

OSTEND IN GERMAN HANDS

Berlin Officially Announces News of Occupation.

WILL REMAIN WITH ARMY

Belgian King Is Confident of Ultimate Success.

London, Oct. 17.—"Tell everybody I never will leave my army if I leave Belgian soil." This declaration was made by King Albert of Belgium to a Belgian diplomat who interviewed the ruler at Ostend Wednesday, according to the Daily Express, which quotes the diplomat. The king continued: "Our army has retreated from Antwerp and concentrated brilliantly. All are ready to give their lives, as am I, for Belgium's independence. It breaks my heart to think that this beautiful country, so peaceful, so industrious, should be occupied, even temporarily, by so wanton an enemy."

"I feel that whatever has been done has the warm approval of all Belgians and civilized Europe. We may suffer reverses but our confidence of final victory is stronger than ever. We are beaten, perhaps, for the time being, but we are not crushed."

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN EUROPE.

Ostend was occupied by the troops of Emperor William last Thursday, according to a German official report arriving from Berlin by way of London. The German forces now are only sixty-five miles across the sea from Dover and 115 miles from London.

The latest French official report does not touch upon the movements of the Germans and the allies near the Belgian coast line.

A newspaper dispatch declares a German column has been hurled back with heavy casualties by the allies in the Vosges. Another newspaper report has it that the Germans have been driven from Lille.

Fighting is still going on between the Austro-German and Russian armies near Warsaw and the Galician fortress of Przemyśl continues to hold out against the attacks of the Russians.

BRITAIN IN MARKET FOR NEW WAR LOAN.

London, Oct. 17.—It was announced that the Bank of England will receive tenders Wednesday for treasury bills amounting to $75,000,000. This will be the fifth loan for a similar amount.

The Austrians have cleared Przemyśl of the investing Russians except to the east.

APPEARANCE CAUSES GREAT EXCITEMENT

Writer Describes German Capture of Ostend.

London, Oct. 17.—The Germans entered Ostend at 10:30 a. m. Thursday, according to the Daily Mail's correspondent, who left that port at the moment of the German occupation.

"Their appearance created tremendous excitement among the hundreds of refugees who had been unable to get away and stood panic-stricken on the quays," says the correspondent. "There was an outburst of groans and hoots, mingled with screams and cries."

The correspondent got away on a small Red Cross motor boat.

"When we got a mile to seaward," he says, "we stopped to await events. We put out a pinnace and went back cautiously in the direction of the harbor. We were observed by a number of German soldiers on shore, who fired upon us. We lay down in the bottom of the boat and got back to the motor launch safely."

Vessel Is Believed to Have Carried a Crew of About Four Hundred—Another Cruiser Escapes Same Fate and Steams Away From the Scene of the Engagement.

London, Oct. 17.—One more keel has to be added to the British naval losses in the war, the cruiser Hawke having been sunk by a German submarine in northern waters. As in the case of the other ships which the Germans have destroyed by means of the submarine only a few of her crew escaped. The Hawke, like the Cressy, Aboukir and Hogue, three other cruisers which have met the same fate, was a Chatham ship, so that town again is in mourning.

The cruiser Theseus, which also was attacked by the same submarine that sunk the Hawke, obeyed the Spartan but necessary instruction issued by the admiralty when so many lives were lost through the Cressy and Hogue going to the assistance of the Aboukir when the latter was torpedoed and turned away from the perishing crew of the Hawke.

Of the ill-fated vessel's crew three petty officers and forty-nine men are reported to have been rescued by a trawler, while one officer and twenty men are said to have escaped on a raft. The Hawke is believed to have had on board a crew of 400 men. The submarine which sank her is supposed to have escaped.

Wolfsohn was convicted of having violated the postoffice statutes in conveying twenty-seven business letters between England and Germany, the original charge of inciting trade with an enemy having been withdrawn, because, as the attorney for the crown said, Mr. Wolfsohn was entirely innocent of criminal intent and a thoroughly respectable man.

It was added in his behalf that the state department at Washington was interested in the case and that Wolfsohn had been promised a postoffice position in the United States.

FOREIGN MINISTER IS DEAD

Marquis Di San Giuliano Passes Away at Rome.

Rome, Oct. 17.—Marquis di San Giuliano, the Italian minister of foreign affairs, is dead.

The death of the foreign minister was not unexpected, but it is believed it will have a potent effect on the present European war.

He was steadily opposed to Italy taking arms against her former treaty companions, Germany and Austria, and has insisted that, inasmuch as popular opinion was opposed to Italy living up to its treaty obligations, because of the deep seated enmity of the Italians to the Austrians, it should maintain an attitude of complete neutrality. He has been described several times lately as the safety valve which prevented Italy joining in the general bloodshed.

The telegrams were signed by General Antonio Villareal, mentioned prominently as a possibility for provisional president, who acted as president of the conference.

The dead are: Captain J. B. Drury of the prison guards, and George Phelps, a convict.

Officials of the prison are suppressing all information concerning the outbreak at Folsom until the arrival of Warden Smith. They merely admitted the death of two and injury of others.

Warden Smith left Sacramento hurriedly for Folsom. Telephone messages from the prison were vague and contained only guarded admissions of trouble between the guards and the convicts.

Phelps is understood to have been among a group of convicts that attempted to escape. Captain Drury with other guards fought the fleeing prisoners.

Prison officials refused to say whether the wounded men were guards or convicts. Pursuit of the two men at liberty was begun at once. Quiet has been restored at the prison.

WILL DISCUSS FINANCES

British Expert on Important Mission to United States.

New York, Oct. 17.—Sir George Paish, adviser to the British chancellor of the exchequer, reached New York on the steamer Baltic to confer with treasury department officials at Washington and bankers and financiers here in regard to the establishing of a basis of exchange between this country and England.

Sir George said he is here at the invitation of the secretary of the treasury. He was accompanied by Basil E. Balcet, an official of the British treasury.

"While I am in America," said Sir George, "I expect to investigate the situation here so far as the handling of the cotton crop and its financing is concerned, as well as the exchange situation. England is vitally interested in the cotton situation."

FOREIGN MINISTER IS DEAD

Marquis Di San Giuliano Passes Away at Rome.

Rome, Oct. 17.—Marquis di San Giuliano, the Italian minister of foreign affairs, is dead.

The death of the foreign minister was not unexpected, but it is believed it will have a potent effect on the present European war.

He was steadily opposed to Italy taking arms against her former treaty companions, Germany and Austria, and has insisted that, inasmuch as popular opinion was opposed to Italy living up to its treaty obligations, because of the deep seated enmity of the Italians to the Austrians, it should maintain an attitude of complete neutrality. He has been described several times lately as the safety valve which prevented Italy joining in the general bloodshed.

ARMISTICE MAY END BATTLE ON BORDER

Rival Mexican Commanders Receive Official News.

Naco, Ariz., Oct. 17.—General Hill and Governor Maytorena, rival commanders in the Naco battle which for more than two weeks has endangered lives of residents on the American side, were notified officially that an armistice had been agreed upon at the Aguas Calientes conference.

The telegrams were signed by General Antonio Villareal, mentioned prominently as a possibility for provisional president, who acted as president of the conference.

General Hill answered at once that he will comply with the armistice, but will continue to defend the town in case of attack. It was said General Villa himself had made no recommendations on the matter.

FRENCH SOCIETY MAY EXPEL GERMAN WRITERS.

Paris, Oct. 17.—The executive committee of the French Society of Authors and Dramatists has decided to recommend to the general meeting the expulsion of the German members, Humperdinck, Hauptmann and Siegfried Wagner.

WON'T ADD TO DISPATCHES

This Is Assurance Given by British Official Press Bureau.

London, Oct. 17.—Sir Stanley Buckmaster, director of the official press bureau, during a conference with American newspaper men, assured them the British censors will write nothing in dispatches which was not put there by the authors of the messages.

He said extracts from London papers which already had been censored could be cabled.

GERMAN GUNBOAT CAPTURED

London Receives Report From Melbourne of Sea Victory.

London, Oct. 17.—A dispatch to the Central News from Melbourne says that advices of the capture of a German gunboat have been received by the government from New Guinea.

TWO KILLED IN PRISON MUTINY

Guard and Convict Slain at Folsom Penitentiary.

TWO INMATES ARE AT LARGE

Officials of the California Penal Institution Refuse to Give Details of the Uprising Until the Arrival of the Warden, Who Was Absent in Sacramento at the Time.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 17.—Two men are dead, three others are seriously wounded and two convicts are at liberty as the result of an outbreak at Folsom prison.

The dead are: Captain J. B. Drury of the prison guards, and George Phelps, a convict.

Officials of the prison are suppressing all information concerning the outbreak at Folsom until the arrival of Warden Smith. They merely admitted the death of two and injury of others.

Warden Smith left Sacramento hurriedly for Folsom. Telephone messages from the prison were vague and contained only guarded admissions of trouble between the guards and the convicts.

Phelps is understood to have been among a group of convicts that attempted to escape. Captain Drury with other guards fought the fleeing prisoners.

Prison officials refused to say whether the wounded men were guards or convicts. Pursuit of the two men at liberty was begun at once. Quiet has been restored at the prison.

WISCONSIN D. A. R. ELECTS

Milwaukee Woman Is Chosen State Regent.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—Mrs. John P. Hume, Milwaukee, was selected state regent of the Wisconsin Daughters of the American Revolution at the closing session of the convention. Other officers elected: Vice regent, Mrs. John G. Rexford, Janesville; secretary, Mrs. O. L. Therny, Kenosha; treasurer, Mrs. William E. Cole, Fond du Lac; historian, Miss Katherine Hood, Stevens Point.

A resolution was adopted pledging the members to assist President Wilson in his efforts to observe the strictest neutrality in the international strife.

PLAN OLD AGE PENSION LAW

Wisconsin Industrial Commission Is Gathering Data.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—Two tentative plans providing for old age pensions have been submitted for criticism to persons specially qualified to make suggestions by the industrial commission. These plans, with the data upon which they are based, will be presented to the legislature in January.

Blanks were sent to the proper officials throughout the state for an individual record of all almshouse inmates sixty years old and upwards and a similar record of all persons of like age who receive other charitable relief.

CASHIER SLUGGER, ROBBED

Three Men Forced to Drop Satchel Containing $2,900.

Milwaukee, Oct. 17.—Three men, thought by the local police to be Chicago gunmen, slugged Herman Scheurman, cashier of a manufacturing concern, on a busy downtown street, and robbed him of a satchel containing $2,900, which, however, was recovered later. The slugging was seen by a number of persons who gave chase, but the men escaped.

The bandit carrying the satchel slipped and fell, dropping the satchel and was forced to leave it where it had fallen, his pursuers being hot upon his trail.

PHILIPPINE PROBE STARTED

British Charge German Cruisers Have Been Supplied With Coal.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador, called the attention of Acting Secretary Lansing to alleged violations of neutrality in the Philippines, where, he said, the British government believed various German ships had been coaled at sea from Manila. Inquiry was directed immediately by the state department.

SUNS AND THE UNIVERSE.
And the Theory of One Great Central Blazing Orb.
That very high, imposing, mathematically proved science—celestial mechanics—demonstrates that there is no necessity for a colossal dominating central sun. The idea of a central sun controlling the entire sidereal universe was advanced by what are called metaphysicians, totally opposite in nature from mathematicians. For one guesses; the other either proves or admits that he cannot.
If the universe is finite it has a precise center. Photos of the entire celestial vault reveal at least 100,000,000 giant suns, our sun being one of the smaller. And these or some of them are known to be two quadrillion miles apart. Mechanics know that the entire congeries of suns has a center of gravity. And it knows that this center of gravitation, even if empty and void, dominates all motions of all the millions of suns around it.
But all suns move as bees in a swarm, and no such immense body has been sensed in space. Kapteyn's discovery of drifting of suns in opposite directions may indeed be the beginning of a discovery of rotation around a center, but the rotation would as well be maintained if the center is an absolute vacuum.
If the universe is infinite it has no center, and the above line of argument backed by rigid mathematics cannot apply.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Walter Lang, of section 15, Long Lake township, has ripe strawberries in his garden and Dr. C. A. Nelson and his companion, Andrew Ellingboe who were out in the country, picked some of them and showed them in the Dispatch office. Mr. Lang had a quart of them, which served on his table with rich cream, was enough to convince a man that Crow Wing county with a Florida climate was the place to live in.

SUNS AND THE UNIVERSE.

And the Theory of One Great Central Blazing Orb.

That very high, imposing, mathematically proved science—celestial mechanics—demonstrates that there is no necessity for a colossal, dominating central sun. The idea of a central sun controlling the entire sidereal universe was advanced by what are called meta-physicians, totally opposite in nature from mathematicians. For one guesses;
the other either proves or admits that he cannot.

If the universe is finite it has a precise center. Photos of the entire celestial vault reveal at least 100,000-000 giant suns, our sun being one of the smaller. And these or some of them are known to be two quadrillion miles apart. Mechanics know that the entire congeries of suns has a center of gravity. And it knows that this center of gravitation, even if empty and void, dominates all motions of all the millions of suns around it.

But all suns move as bees in a swarm, and no such immense body has been sensed in space. Kapteyn's discovery of drifting of suns in opposite directions may indeed be the beginning of a discovery of rotation around a center, but the rotation would as well be maintained if the center is an absolute vacuum.

If the universe is infinite it has no center, and the above line of argument backed by rigid mathematics cannot apply.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY

Conducted in the Sleeper Block by Ralph M. Quinn and J. C.
Strout

The Brainerd School of Telegraphy is meeting with much success in its new quarters in the Sleeper block.
Two railway wires cut in the school and thirty offices have been arranged where students get the same practice and tuition as though placed on separate stations on a railway.

For instance, with 24 pupils at the stations, one finds this list and call for each:

0. "Z"—St. Paul
1. "MS"—Minneapolis.
2. "NY"—New York.
3. "BO"—Boston.
4. "FA"—Philadelphia.

20. "CX"—Crookston.
21. "JY"—Jamestown.
22. "D"—Duluth.
23. "BR"—Brainerd.

Conducting the school are Ralph
E. Quinn and J. C. Strout. A large class of night students has been formed and a day class is also under way.

One of the interesting sights is the rectifier used to change the alter-

WOMAN'S REALM

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Miss Ida Mae Welliver, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Welliver, Married in North Dakota

The attached clipping was taken from the Sheyenne North Dakota Star of October 9th. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Welliver were residents of Crow Wing county for about 25 years, having a farm at Flak. They removed to North Dakota four years ago. The account of their daughter's wedding follows:

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Welliver of Fort Totten Wednesday morning at eight o'clock, occurred the marriage of their daughter Ida Mae and Lewis Edward Amundson. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. G. Markley of Sheyenne in the presence of about thirty-five guests.

The home was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, the colors being green and white.

Promptly at 8 o'clock while the soft strains of the wedding march was being played by Miss Anna Tomlinson, the bride party entered the large and spacious parlor. The first one of the bride party to enter was Miss Sadie Welliver who was maid of honor. She was beautifully gowned in cream messaline draped in shadow lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The next to enter was the groom who wore a suit of dark blue serge and was attended by Mr. Benjie Welliver who acted as best man. Miss Elsie Welliver who was the bridesmaid was next to enter. She was gowned in white tulle and carried a pale blue crystal dot chiffon and carried a dainty bouquet of bridesmaid roses. Following the bridesmaid was the second attendant, Mr. Roy Williams.

Leaning on the arm of her father, the bride entered to the strains of Lohengrin, and taking her place, the party was complete. The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed in Chantilly lace and white satin roses. She carried a large and beautiful bouquet of bridal roses.

Immediately following the ceremony the guests were ushered into the dining room where an elaborate four course breakfast was served.

The out of town guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Welliver of Duluth, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rice of Brainerd, Minn., and Mrs. T. C. Taylor of Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. Amundson were the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. They will be at home to their friends in Churches Ferry after November 1st.

PERSONAL MENTION

Miss Louise Barrett went to Staples this noon.

Miss Julia Wilson arrived from Nisswa this noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sunley, of Toledo, Ohio, are the guests of his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sunley, of the Pearce block.

Mrs. Wm. Nelson and daughter, who have spent five months in Denmark, and were for a time marooned there by the European war, returned home last evening.

Busy Bee Supper

The supper and auction sale of the Busy Bee society of the Swedish Lutheran church at Walker hall Friday evening was largely attended, so much so that extra tables had to be placed in the hall to accommodate the crowds that surged up the stairway for supper and to view the many fine articles of needlework made by the ladies. The supper was one of those grand menus for which the ladies are justly famous and was appreciated by every one there. Many people from Ironton, Crosby and other range points were there.

An Early Marriage Vow

Wilt thou take her for thy pard for better or for worse, to have to hold, to friendly guard, till hauled off in a hearse Wilt thou let her have her way, consult her many wishes, make the fires most every day, and help her with the dishes? Wilt thou give her all the coin her little purse will pack, buy her a monkey boa, a muff and seal skin sacque? Wilt thou comfort and support her father, mother, Aunt Jemima, Uncle Zeb, thirteen sisters and a brother? And his face grew pale and blank, it was too late to jilt as through the chapel floor he sank he sadly said: "I wilt."

The Tragedy of Being Twenty-eight

The Way One Proposal Was Developed.

By STUART B. STONE.

Colonel John Andrew Findlay was a swaggering young dog of sixty, and Mr. Thomas, his son, was as old as twenty-eight.

The colonel had proposed just eight times to Miss Edwina Lincoln, his delightful little scamp of a daughter, a wealthy ward, whereas Mr. Thomas, being all of twenty-eight and extremely serious, would never have dreamed of the thing.

The colonel began the business when Miss Edwina began to stick up her chestnut hair, as do young ladies when they attain delectable sixteen. The colonel, though fifty-five at the time, had nothing to his credit in the way of discovery, invention or production; but, then, the colonel did not stop for a little thing like that.

"I know I'm old," explained Colonel John Andrew, and Miss Edwina interrupted:

"You're not—you're not old!" she cried in heated denial, for they were comrades of years and had enjoyed many great times and jolly romps together.

"Then," said the colonel, optimistic as Old King Cole, "you will have me, Edwina, when you are a couple of years older?"

Edwina laughed and half cried, informed the colonel that he was a dear old classmate of Methuselah and ended up by kissing him, while he patted the newly heaped lady hair. After that Edwina sought out Master Thomas, pottering about his maze of a mathematical theory.

"How old are you, Tom?" she asked, though she knew like A B C.

"Twenty-three," answered Tom soberly as he went on figuring. "Twenty-three," he repeated, with a solemn look at Edwina, perched upon a table of matted formulae. "Getting older every day, Edwina, and nothing to show for the years." He gloomed at her like Jupiter displeased, and she went out and dimmed her big brown eyes with tears.

The colonel continued to entertain the fondest, rose tinted hopes, which he carefully announced as often as possible. Miss Edwina persisted in becoming more entrancingly lovely day by day. Tom went on working over stupid figures. And when Edwina, radiant and beaming with the glory of another year cast behind with the despised giddings of childhood, came to announce her seventeenth birthday the colonel proposed again. He couldn't help it—dear soul. Edwina tweaked his nose, puffed him an ethereal little kiss and scampered from the room, laughing.

"By the eternal!" murmured Colonel John Andrew when she left him with his hands still in the attitude of dramatic pleading. "Now, wouldn't she and I make a pair of high steppers in the beauty show on the avenue of evenings?" Then he tiptoed over to an old trunk and looked for a long while at the picture of a kindly, faded lady in a locket.

Edwina had gone to the library, where she lolled upon a desk covered with gay equations in algebra.

"Tom," she asked softly, "did you know I was seventeen?"

Tom nodded. "Yes, I know, Edwina. I'm keeping track of these things."

"Tom"—she persisted, and he ceased his calculations and turned his dark, solemn eyes on her.

"Tom," she asked, "are you ever-do you expect ever to get married?" Tom blushed and turned away to his papers. "I am twenty-four, Edwina," he declared in slightly trembling tones, "and I have achieved nothing. How could I think of—"

He stopped at that, and Edwina slipped up to her pinkish boudoir and wept softly for perhaps five minutes.

When Edwina ripened into charming eighteen and after the colonel's third fervent proposal the light in her brown eyes, the gold brown glint of her hair and the note of her clear young voice became a topic here and there, and wooers could no longer be held back from the threshold.

The colonel eyed them balefully, then slapped them on their young backs and adjured the best man to win. Master Tom, with the tragedy of twenty-five, six and seven bowing his hand some curly head, worked with his noxious mathematics and worried over the respective merits of Edwina's army of sighing Romeo chaps.

And Edwina coquetted, mercifully as possible, with the whole idolatrous band, refusing Colonel John Andrew as often as twenty times a month and extending delicious sympathy to Master Tom in his struggle with Old Time, the scythe man.

Of course the time had come when Edwina became all of twenty-one and unhampered mistress of a really respectable fortune. The event was signalized by a masterful proposal on the part of the colonel and by a little spit-spat of an interview between Edwina and Tom in the dull library. Master Tom was twenty-eight—twenty-eight, mind you, he had declared, with a sigh, and Edwina, slamming the door, remarked that he acted as if he were a hundred and twenty-eight. And Tom, much puzzled, allowed a precious mathematical thought to evaporate while he sought out Colonel John Andrew.

"It is about Edwina's future," began Tom. "She is twenty-one now, and I am worried."

"Oh, don't worry!" exploded the colonel. "I never did in my life, and look at me." And the colonel noted in the mirror how kindly the scythe bearer really had been to him.

"But she will necessarily be marrying," continued Master Tom.

"Of course," Colonel John Andrew acquiesced softly, while a mellow glow came into his good, hale eyes.

"There's young Shipley," suggested Tom.

"Milk and water," snapped the colonel. "She's too good for a million like him."

"She's too good for any of them," said Tom, "but we must see that she gets the best. Now, there's Landis." "Wooden headed as any Indian cigar sign," objected the colonel. He objected to all the other callow ones until Tom in perplexity demanded, "What then?"

"What then?" snapped Colonel John Andrew. "Why, before our little Edwina shall tie herself to any of these I'll go downstairs and propose myself. And the colonel went. Tom followed.

"Is it because I am too old?" the colonel asked Edwina as soon as he saw her, assuming a tone of ineffable sorrow.

Edwina shook her pretty head. "I like people who are old—a little bit old," she declared.

"I know I have never accomplished anything," continued the colonel, "save to ride a prancing colt or to lead a cotillion as it should be led."

"I don't care—I don't care for that!" exclaimed Edwina, with more vehemence than seemed necessary. "Tom is always talking about being old, but I like him better than if he had down around Mars."

Tom started, blushing, and the colonel squinted at them both.

"I'm—I'm!" stammered Tom, but Edwina impatiently waved him into silence.

"Oh, you're twenty-eight," she said in exasperation. "It's simply horrible! Just think, you'll be twenty-nine some day!"

Colonel John Andrew swallowed something, underwent another change of expression, sighed with final resignation and relief and smiled. "Then it is to be Shipley or Landis or young Gregg?" he asked.

"No, no, no," exclaimed Edwina, red and desperate, "nor any of the silly, immature flock!"

"Then, in the name of Cupid, who?" demanded Colonel John Andrew.

"Oh, I suppose it's to be no one," quavered Edwina, with a little look at Tom on the settee. Then she made for the door, all ready for tears once more.

"Tom," thundered Colonel John Andrew, "arise and ask that young lady to marry you." Edwina turned half expectantly.

"Great Caesar, father," cried Tom, "I'm twenty-eight!"

"See there," said Edwina, wheeling. "Wait, Edwina," called Tom, and the girl dallied at the foot of the stairs.

Tom stumbled blunderingly up to her. "You don't mind my age," he asked, "or the fact that I have done nothing worth while for the world?"

"Oh, sugar!" said Edwina, in dead earnest. "Why, look at the colonel, Tom!"

The colonel winced, but continued his beaming smile, and Tom, regarding the flustered, happy girl, reached over and kissed Edwina on her trembling red lips, and then the colonel came and kissed them both.

It was a queer little proposal and rather a difficult matter to figure out whether the colonel or Tom or Edwina did the asking, maybe, but it held. And anyway it was a happy ending. So possibly it was the best that could have been devised.

BARBED WIRE IN WAR.

It Makes a Terrible Trap if the Enemy Gets Entangled in It.

The liberal use of barbed wire by a force of defenders has often turned what would otherwise have been a victorious assault upon a fortified position into ignominious defeat. Every one recalls the way barbed wire was used around Santiago during the Spanish-American war and also in the Russo-Japanese war.

The usual method is to stretch thousands of yards of wire, thickly "barbed" in front of an enemy. Irregular fences are formed, only a few feet apart. Trees, stumps and everything that can be used as a post is made to serve, and the more tangled the wire the more effective it becomes. The terrible effect upon a force that becomes entangled in such a snare is appalling. Horses are torn to pieces, men are cut and bruised, while the wire serves to hold them in range of deadly guns. Nothing is more demoralizing upon the troops, which find it practically impossible to advance or retreat.

Barbed wire is placed by a regular corps of men who have special equipment for the work, and coils of wire are a part of every army's equipment. Likewise every fighting force has a corps of men provided with wire cutters to clear the ground for infantry and cavalry in advance. Their work is

What a Long War Would Mean.

But would it be possible for any of the continental powers to continue a war on the scale of present day wars for three years? If they could do so they would practically exhaust themselves. To keep open the communications, to provide armies in the field with everything necessary, both in the way of munitions of war and of provisions and to fill up the gaps caused by deaths in battle, wounds and the ill health that would attend a long spell of campaigning in all kinds of weather would make such a demand upon the vigorous manhood of all the countries that it seems reasonable to infer that they would be, every one of them, even the wealthiest, exhausted before the end of three years was reached.—London Statist.

WOMAN'S REALM

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Miss Ida Mae Welliver, Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Welliver, Married in North Dakota

The attached clipping was taken from the Sheyenne North Dakota Star of October 9th. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Welliver were residents of Crow Wing county for about 25 years, having a farm at Flak. They removed to North Dakota four years ago. The account of their daughter's wedding follows:

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Welliver of Fort Totten Wednesday morning at eight o'clock, occurred the marriage of their daughter Ida Mae and Lewis Edward Amundson. The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. G. Marley of Sheyenne in the presence of about thirty-five guests.

The home was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, the colors being green and white.

Promptly at 8 o'clock while the soft strains of the wedding march was being played by Miss Anna Tomlinson, the bride party entered the large and spacious parlor. The first one of the bride party to enter was Miss Sadie Welliver who was maid of honor. She was beautifully gowned in cream messaline draped in shadow lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The next to enter was the groom who wore a suit of dark blue serge and was attended by Mr. Benjie Welliver who acted as best man. Miss Elsie Welliver who was the bridesmaid was next to enter. She was gowned in white tulle draped in pale blue crystal dot chiffon and carried a dainty bouquet of bridesmaid roses. Following the bridesmaid was the second attendant, M. Roy Williams.

Leaning on the arm of her father, the bride entered to the strains of Lohengrin, and taking her place, the party was complete. The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed in Chantilly lace and white satin roses. She carried a large and beautiful bouquet of bridal roses.

Immediately following the ceremony the guests were ushered into the dining room where an elaborate four course breakfast was served.

The out of town guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Welliver of Duluth, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rice of Brainerd, Minn., and Mrs. T. C. Taylor of Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. Amundson were the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. They will be at home to their friends in Churches Ferry after November 1st.

PERSONAL MENTION

Miss Julia Wilson arrived from Nisswa this noon.

Busy Bee Supper

The supper and auction sale of the Busy Bee society of the Swedish Lutheran church at Walker hall Friday evening was largely attended, so much so that extra tables had to be placed in the hall to accommodate the crowds that surged up the stairway for supper and to view the many fine articles of needlework made by the ladies. The supper was one of those grand menus for which the ladies are justly famous and was appreciated by every one there. Many people from Ironton, Crosby and other range points were there.

An Early Marriage Vow

Wilt thou take her for thy pard for better or for worse, to have to hold, to friendly guard, till hauled off in a hearse. Wilt thou let her have her way, consult her many wishes, make the fires most every day, and help her with the dishes? Wilt thou give her all the coin her little purse will pack, buy her a monkey boa, a muff and seal skin sacque? Wilt thou comfort and support her father, mother, Aunt Jemima, Uncle Zeb, thirteen sisters and a brother? And his face grew pale and blank, it was too late to jilt as through the chapel floor he sank he sadly said: "I wilt."

The Tragedy of Being Twenty-eight

The Way One Proposal Was Developed.

By STUART B. STONE.

Colonel John Andrew Findlay was a swaggering young dog of sixty, and Mr. Thomas, his son, was as old as twenty-eight.

The colonel had proposed just eight times to Miss Edwina Lincoln, his delightful little scamp of a wealthy ward, whereas Mr. Thomas, being all of twenty-eight and extremely serious, would never have dreamed of the thing.

The colonel began the business when Miss Edwina began to stick up her chestnut hair, as do young ladies when they attain delectable sixteen. The colonel, though fifty-five at the time, had nothing to his credit in the way of discovery, invention or production; but, then, the colonel did not stop for a little thing like that.

"I know I'm old," explained Colonel John Andrew, and Miss Edwina interrupted:

"You're not—you're not old!" she cried in heated denial, for they were comrades of years and had enjoyed many great times and jolly romps together.

"Then," said the colonel, optimistic as Old King Cole, "you will have me, Edwina, when you are a couple of years older?"

Edwina laughed and half cried, informed the colonel that he was a dear old classmate of Methuselah and ended up by kissing him, while he patted the newly heaped lady hair. After that Edwina sought out Master Thomas, pottering about his maze of a mathematical theory.

"How old are you, Tom?" she asked, though she knew like A B C.

"Twenty-three," answered Tom soberly as he went on figuring. "Twenty-three," he repeated, with a solemn look at Edwina, perched upon a table of matted formulae. "Getting older every day, Edwina, and nothing to show for the years." He gloomed at her like Jupiter displeased, and she went out and dimmed her big brown eyes with tears.

The colonel continued to entertain the fondest, rose tinted hopes, which he carefully announced as often as possible. Miss Edwina persisted in becoming more entrancingly lovely day by day. Tom went on working over stupid figures. And when Edwina, radiant and beaming with the glory of another year cast behind with the despised glidings of childhood, came to announce her seventeenth birthday the colonel proposed again. He couldn't help it—dear soul. Edwina tweaked his nose, puffed him an ethereal little kiss and scampered from the room, laughing.

"By the eternal!" murmured Colonel John Andrew when she left him with his hands still in the attitude of dramatic pleading. "Now, wouldn't she and I make a pair of high steppers in the beauty show on the avenue of evenings?" Then he tiptoed over to an old trunk and looked for a long while at the picture of a kindly, faded lady in a locket.

Edwina had gone to the library, where she lolled upon a desk covered with gay equations in algebra.

"Tom," she asked softly, "did you know I was seventeen?"

Tom nodded. "Yes, I know, Edwina. I'm keeping track of these things."

"Tom"—she persisted, and he ceased his calculations and turned his dark, solemn eyes on her.

"Tom," she asked, "are you ever—do you expect ever to get married?" Tom blushed and turned away to his papers. "I am twenty-four, Edwina," he declared in slightly trembling tones, "and I have achieved nothing. How could I think of?"

He stopped at that, and Edwina slipped up to her pinkish boudoir and wept softly for perhaps five minutes.

When Edwina ripened into charm eighteen and after the colonel's third fervent proposal the light in her brown eyes, the gold brown glint of her hair and the note of her clear young voice became a topic here and there, and woosers could no longer be held back from the threshold.

The colonel eyed them balefully, then slapped them on their young backs and adjured the best man to win. Master Tom, with the tragedy of twenty-five, six and seven bowing his hand some curly head, worked with his noxious mathematics and worried over the respective merits of Edwina's army of sighing Romeo chaps.

And Edwina coquetted, mercifully as possible, with the whole idolatrous band, refusing Colonel John Andrew as often as twenty times a month and extending delicious sympathy to Master Tom in his struggle with Old Time, the scythe man.

Of course the time had come when Edwina became all of twenty-one and unhampered mistress of a really respectable fortune. The event was signaled by a masterful proposal on the part of the colonel and by a little spit-spat of an interview between Edwina and Tom in the dull library. Master Tom was twenty-eight—twenty-eight, mind you, he had declared, with a sigh, and Edwina, slamming the door, remarked that he acted as if he were a hundred and twenty-eight. And Tom, much puzzled, allowed a precious mathematical thought to evaporate while he sought out Colonel John Andrew.

"It is about Edwina's future," began Tom. "She is twenty-one now, and I am worried."

"Oh, don't worry!" exploded the colonel. "I never did in my life, and look at me." And the colonel noted in the mirror how kindly the scythe bearer really had been to him.

"But she will necessarily be marrying," continued Master Tom.

"Of course," Colonel John Andrew acquiesced softly, while a mellow glow came into his good, hale eyes.

"There's young Shipley," suggested Tom.

"Milk and water," snapped the colonel. "She's too good for a million like him."

"She's too good for any of them," said Tom, "but we must see that she gets the best. Now, there's Landis."

"Wooden headed as any Indian cigar sign," objected the colonel. He objected to all the other calow ones until Tom in perplexity demanded, "What then?"

"What then?" snapped Colonel John Andrew. "Why, before our little Edwina shall tie herself to any of these I'll go downstairs and propose myself. And the colonel went. Tom followed.

"Is it because I'm too old?" the colonel asked Edwina as soon as he saw her, assuming a tone of ineffable sorrow.

Edwina shook her pretty head. "I like people who are old—a little bit old," she declared.

"I know I have never accomplished anything," continued the colonel, "save to ride a prancing colt or to lead a coltillon as it should be led."

Tom started, blushing, and the colonel squinted at them both.

"I'm—I'm"—stammered Tom, but Edwina impatiently waved him into silence.

"Oh, you're twenty-eight," she said in exasperation. "It's simply horrible! Just think, you'll be twenty-nine some day!"

Colonel John Andrew swallowed something, underwent another change of expression, sighed with final resignation and relief and smiled. "Then it is to be Shipley or Landis or young Gregg?" he asked.

"No, no, no," exclaimed Edwina, red and desperate, "nor any of the silly, immature flock!"

"Then, in the name of Cupid, who?" demanded Colonel John Andrew.

"Oh, I suppose it's to be no one," quavered Edwina, with a little look at Tom on the settee. Then she made for the door, all ready for tears once more.

"Tom," thundered Colonel John Andrew, "arise and ask that young lady to marry you." Edwina turned half expectantly.

"Great Caesar, father," cried Tom, "I'm twenty-eight!"

"See there," said Edwina, wheeling.

"Wait, Edwina," called Tom, and the girl dallied at the foot of the stairs.

Tom stumbled blunderingly up to her. "You don't mind my age," he asked, "or the fact that I have done nothing worth while for the world?"

"Oh, sugar!" said Edwina, in dead earnest. "Why, look at the colonel, Tom!"

The colonel winced, but continued his beaming smile, and Tom, regarding the fustered, happy girl, reached over and kissed Edwina on her trembling red lips, and then the colonel came and kissed them both.

It was a queer little proposal and rather a difficult matter to figure out whether the colonel or Tom or Edwina did the asking, maybe, but it held. And anyway it was a happy ending. So possibly it was the best that could have been devised.

What a Long War Would Mean. But would it be possible for any of the continental powers to continue a war on the scale of present day wars for three years? If they could do so they would practically exhaust themselves. To keep open the communications, to provide armies in the field with everything necessary, both in the way of munitions of war and of provisions and to fill up the gaps caused by deaths in battle, wounds and the ill health that would attend a long spell of campaigning in all kinds of weather would make such a demand upon the vigorous manhood of all the countries that it seems reasonable to infer that they would be, every one of them, even the wealthiest, exhausted before the end of three years was reached.—London Statist.

Bird's Milk.

"I fed him with bird's milk." This curious expression was used by the old sultan of Turkey, while a prisoner on his way to Saloniki, with reference to his brother Mohammed, his predecessor on the throne. Abdul Hamid was lamenting his own fate and telling his captors how little he deserved it and how kind he had been to his brother. "I fed him with bird's milk," he said, as if that were the greatest kindness he could show. What is bird's milk? Not the Turkish equivalent of the milk of human kindness, but a European brand of condensed milk bearing on the can a picture of a bird on a nest.

BASKET BALL

Our National Indoor Game—Comments on it by a Lover of the Game

Basket ball has without a doubt become our national indoor game just as baseball is our national outdoor game, and from the reports which seem to come from all parts of the world it will continue to grow at a rapid rate.

The reason for the vast growth of the game is probably because basket ball presents an opportunity for everyone to enjoy a game of real healthful pleasure. The game does not necessarily need to be played by people who are especially fitted for it physically. On the other hand, the game should and can be such that every man or woman who desires may play the game regardless of their special ability in athletics. To the last class of players the game will continue to be a source of pleasure and a good recreation.

Many schools and colleges and in fact our play grounds and Y. M. C. A. organizations use the game with splendid results. Many colleges and other institutions of learning have now recognized basket ball as their major indoor winter sport, and during the long winter months are supporting the game financially and giving letters for excellent play.

However, basket ball is not a game for colleges, schools and large cities only, but it may be a good game for clubs of all kinds, small cities and towns all over the country. Members of the Y. M. C. A. surely realize the great influence the game has had on the mid-winter attendance and its lasting effect to attract young men to the place of indoor sports. Also, just because basket ball is not a game for a select few, a great many business men and other individuals have organized teams representing various clubs and small cities.

In Brainerd there is a splendid opportunity to develop this game for the benefit and enjoyment of all classes of people. Teams composed of people working in the factories, stores, etc., could be formed and a league organized whereby a great many could participate in the sport to their mutual benefit. There could also be a team organized to represent the city in games with teams from other cities. In this way the cold winter evenings might be spent in joyful amusement, which would decrease the expense caused by individuals spending money for other pastimes not quite so beneficial. No doubt the game has been and will be played by individuals and pupils in the public schools with the hearty approval of the parents and all parties concerned.

In speaking of the great value of basket ball as an all-around game, I might mention that it presents exceptional opportunities to bring forth high ideals which go to produce good men and women. In other words, to train a good basketball team the main essential is to produce team work. In order to secure this very desirable asset each member of the team must learn to subdue their own little desires for the good of the whole and thus they are learning something which will develop character. In regard to the art of securing team work the writer wishes to point out that the team should be coached so that many players may learn by bitter experience that to win a game against great odds, one must lay aside personal ambitions to star and the strong desire to throw a goal when the proper thing to do would be to pass the ball to a team-mate who has a much better chance to score. In other words each player must perform a part of a well running machine that can pass the ball and score goals to the utter dismay of their opponents.

Now basket ball may not be a game for a select few whose only desire is to defeat the opposing side. It is a game for all and should be played in an environment which will tend to bring forth the right moral development.

All players should be encouraged to keep themselves in good condition and so it seems that a game which contains so many excellent features must be a very desirable game to support.

In writing this modest article the writer does not wish to give the impression that he is a great authority on the subject; but he does hope that Brainerd may profit by the game he has played and which he feels is a game of real merit.

WRITES ABOUT CARE OF FEET

P. J. Oberst, Selz Royal Blue Shoe Man, Believes in Advantage of Arch Supports

KNOWLEDGE OF HUMAN FOOT

This is Something Which Every Shoe Salesman Should Have to be Efficient in Business

P. J. Oberst, who sells the "Selz Royal Blue" shoes in Brainerd, has an interesting article in a trade paper and parts are herewith reproduced because of their general interest to the public.

"It is safe to predict," says Mr. Oberst, "that the time is not far distant when each and every shoe salesman who is engaged in fitting shoes will be obliged to comply with the laws which will be on our statute books, compelling such salesmen to pass examination to show he possesses the proper knowledge of the human foot.

It is just as important that he be required to do this as it is for oculist to pass the required examination before he be allowed to practice his profession. We are living in an age of wonderful activity, and in order to keep abreast with this rapid pace we will be obliged to keep our feet from aches and pains. It is appalling to know that a great percentage of our people are suffering from some form of foot trouble, much of which can be easily cured by proper fitting shoes or by the use of arch supports adjusted to fit. Much of this trouble I speak of is of long standing, and can be easily traced to the ignorance, or rather the lack of knowledge, of the shoe salesman who is not competent in offering proper advice.

To this you may say, many persons will not allow you to properly fit their feet, as they demand shoes too small or too large, as the case may be. True enough, there are such people, but how about the man or woman who comes to your store and leaves the shoe fitting of their families to your judgment? Are you competent to be trusted in such cases? How many times have you had a customer use this common expression: 'I have rheumatism of the feet.' Now it is a well proven fact that not two out of ten such cases are rheumatism at all but instead a broken arch or flat-foot, which can be easily cured by properly fitting arch supports.

Another question we have often heard is: 'What is the matter with my feet? They ache when I am on them very much, yet my shoes seem to fit very well. I will never buy this brand or make of shoes again.' Now here's the point, they are just as liable to tell some other dealer that about a shoe which you, yourself, are selling.

You will find by examining the foot that the remedy lies in fitting the customer with arch supports as in many instances the arch of the foot has begun to fall, and let me say, right there, you gain a point for the shoes you are selling.

A man came to my store recently and told me how he had been cured of a case of supposed rheumatism of long standing by using arch supports and thanked me for putting him on the right track. He told me that I had made a new man of him."

ENGLISH FEMALE PORTERS.

Muscular Women Carry Heavy Loads in Covent Garden Market.

Visitors to Covent Garden market, the great flower market of London, will find that in addition to much floral beauty there is a wholesome, muscular athletic womanhood that is good to look upon to be found among the women porters. The flowers that are sold in huge quantities in this market are bought by retail flower dealers, to whose vans the flowers must be delivered in the surrounding streets. The work of carrying is done largely by women, and the Covent Garden woman porter is one of London's character studies.

These women, who carry loads of flowers on their heads, are hardworking, conscientious workers. As a rule, their hours are from 5 to 9 in the morning—not long perhaps, but during that time the women do what might well be considered a good day's work. It is not light work, as a woman porter frequently carries two dozen large pots of plants on her head over a distance of several hundred yards. Light and heavy loads may or may not come alternately, but all are accepted cheerfully. The payment, as a rule, is adequate, but depends upon the generosity of the temporary employer.

The powers of endurance these women possess are quite remarkable, and the work agrees with them. One woman recently pointed with pride to her daughter, a girl of twenty, with cheeks glowing with health and muscles that would do credit to any system of physical culture. The girl had been delicate, but a few weeks' work in the flower market caused a decided improvement, which increased as time went on.

A somewhat odd recognition of their work is received annually by these flower porters in the shape of a shawl and two aprons each, a gift from the Duchess of Bedford.—London Mirror.

Quaint Old Towns.

Cattaro is one of Austria-Hungary's few seaports, all on the Adriatic and mostly along that narrow coast strip bordering it on the east and known as Dalmatia. Pola, Zara, Sebenico, Spalato, Trau and Ragusa are other port towns. Pola, chief naval station and considered the Austrian Sebastopol, being described as "almost invulnerable." Ragusa was once a miniature republic under the suzerainty of Turkey. Spalato lay within the area of that famous palace which the Roman Emperor Diocletian reared and occupied after his abdication. Each of these towns is rich in Roman memories and ruins and alluringly located in a historic region.

Ruskin and Warships.

Ships of war had a stirring fascination for Ruskin up to the very end. Writing of his last days, Mr. W. G. Collingwood describes how: "Some poet books he would pore over or drowse over by the hour. The last of these was one in which he had a double interest, for it was about ships of war, and it was written by the kinsman of a dear friend. Some of the artists he had loved and helped had fallen or left him, but Burne-Jones was always true. So when a little boy lent him 'A Fleet in Being' he read and reread it, then got a copy for himself and might have learned it by heart, so long he pored over it."—London Chronicle.

Another Way Out.

Walter Damrosch, the musical conductor, played in his youth in a noted orchestra. He wore, as is the way with musicians, long hair and unusually bushy besides.

A thin haired violinist seated behind Mr. Damrosch in the orchestra used to take exception to the young man's coiffure. He said one day:

"Look here, Damrosch. Why don't you get your hair cut? Then maybe I could see the conductor."

Mr. Damrosch answered calmly over his shoulder:

"Why don't you learn to play better? Then you'd sit in front of me."

Painfully Particular.

"If you refuse me this time," he said, "I shall never ask you to be my wife again."

"Oh, please," replied the girl from Boston, "try to use better English. I never have been your wife. Why should you ask me to be your wife again?"—Chicago Herald.

Made Him Uneasy.

Bix—I noticed you were very quick to give up your seat in the street car to that lady. Dix—Yes, since childhood days I have never felt easy when I saw a woman with a strap in her hand.—Boston Transcript.

MEMBERSHIP OF HOUSE TOO BIG

Congress Now Realizes Its Mistake In Enlarging Body.

DIFFICULT TO CORRECT IT.

Law of Self Preservation Would Prevent Representatives From Decreasing the Size—Business Conducted by a Comparative Few, and This Causes Much Absenteeism.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Sixty-third congress has demonstrated that it was a great mistake to increase the membership. The house was too large when it consisted of 391 members, and the increase to 435 members has simply added to the confusion, caused delay, made it more difficult to obtain a quorum, reduced the efficiency of individual members and increased the control of the leaders who are chairmen of important committees.

It is difficult to see how this mistake can ever be corrected.

If the house should decide to reduce the membership to 300 it would make a good working legislative body, but it would mean throwing out of jobs 135 members. As the 135 could not be selected and nearly every man would fear that he would be a victim the natural law of self preservation will induce them to vote against any reduction.

Cause of Absenteeism.

A comparatively few conduct the business of the house. The others do not want to remain simply to be counted as a quorum and be compelled to listen to trilling discussions or long winded speeches solely for home consumption. It requires 218 members to make a quorum. Much of the time less than a quarter of that number are in the house. Most members realize that a great mistake was made in enlarging the membership of the house to its present proportions.

Middleman's Rakeoff.

A member of congress from one of the western states wants a committee of the house to investigate why it is that wheat sells for 20 cents more per bushel at the big grain centers than it does at the elevators when farmers deliver it for market. It is shown that the distance between the elevator and the big market cannot cost 20 cents a bushel for transportation.

It is the same old question that has been agitating the country for many years, the rakeoff of the middlemen who handle products between the producer and the consumer. Much of the high cost of living is explained by the profits of the various persons who handle the products of the farm before they reach the home of the consumer. It is not likely that congress will make any investigation as to the differences in the price of wheat or farm products, for it is plain to every person that middlemen get the difference.

Discouraging Junkets.

It is understood that Postmaster General Burleson does not look with favor upon the assembling of postmasters and other postal officials at different points for the purposes of holding conventions and discussing postal matters. Postmaster General Burleson looks upon these meetings, which are always held at the expense of the government, as more in the line of junkets and for the purpose of having vacations or a good time than anything else, and he regards that the good accomplished does not warrant the expense.

Nebraska Politics In It.

The independence of Senator Hitchcock and the differences which he has had with the present administration have often been traced to Nebraska politics. Senator Hitchcock and Secretary of State Bryan have not been in accord for a number of years. There were radical differences between them at the Baltimore convention and even before. Some people attribute Hitchcock's antagonism to certain presidential policies to this condition in Nebraska politics.

A Tardy Recognition.

The present congress has not shown much disposition toward erecting statues. Even the two bills which were coupled together providing for statues to Hamilton and Jefferson have not received the assent of the house, and it may be that the proposition for a tardy recognition of Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary patriot, will not receive attention. It has been proposed to appropriate $100,000 for a monument to him to be erected in the city of Washington.

Can Do Anything.

During the discussion of the parcel post there was an interesting exchange between Senator Bankhead of Alabama and Senator Martine of New Jersey, at one point of which Martine exclaimed:

"Great heavens! I believe we are big enough and broad enough and bright and intelligent enough to carry on the rural delivery and the parcel post."

"Yes," replied Bankhead; "we can do anything."

"Well," remarked Martine, "we can pretty nearly. With a Democratic majority there is no limit to our hopes and possibilities."

AN ORIGINAL ARGUMENT FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE.

Outline of Proposal of Hamilton Holt—"America's Destiny to Lead."

Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, in that publication presents what he considers is an original argument for universal peace under the title, "The Way to Disarm—A Practical Proposal."

Mr. Holt in part writes: "In his famous essay, 'Perpetual Peace,' published in 1795, Emmanuel Kant declared that we never can have universal peace until the world is politically organized, and it will never be possible to organize the world politically until the people, not the kings, rule."

"A careful study of the formation of the thirteen American colonies from separate states into our present compact Union discloses the fact that the nations today are in the same stage of development that the American colonies were about the time of their first confederation."

"Let the League of Peace be formed on the following five principles:

"First.—The nations of the league shall mutually agree to respect the territory and sovereignty of each other.

"Second.—All questions that cannot be settled by diplomacy shall be arbitrated.

"Third.—The nations of the league shall provide a periodical assembly to make all rules to become law unless vetoed by a nation within a stated period.

"Fourth.—The nations shall disarm to the point where the combined forces of the league shall be a certain per cent higher than those of the most heavily armed nation or alliance outside the league. Detailed rules for this pro rata disarmament shall be formulated by the assembly.

"Fifth.—Any member of the league shall have the right to withdraw on due notice or may be expelled by the unanimous vote of the others."

Mr. Holt concludes with this statement: "It would seem to be the manifest destiny of the United States to lead in the establishment of such a league."

The Sawfish.

The sawfish has a formidable weapon of killing in the flat, bony sword, armed on each side with about twenty large, bony teeth. The sawfish rushes into a shoal of fish and slashes to the right and to the left. In sea fights sometimes whales have been killed by sawfish, and the saw sometimes has been driven through the hull of a ship. The sawfish, common about the West Indies, goes into the gulf of Mexico and the Florida waters and sometimes ascends the Mississippi and other southern rivers, doing great havoc to the nets of fishermen. This species sometimes reaches a length of fifteen feet, a fourth of which measures the "saw."

A prohibition speaker spoke in the Woodman hall on Tuesday. The gentleman is a polished speaker and handled his subject in a forcible manner.

C. A. Lindbergh opened his campaign for reelection to congress in Woodman hall in Ft. Ripley on Wednesday evening. That gentleman sure has a host of admirers in this vicinity. A large number of political aspirants for office attended the meeting.

An exhibit of potatoes will be made in the school Friday afternoon. The pupils intend to carry off some of the prizes at the Brainerd convention in December. Mr. Wilson has offered cash prizes for the first and second best peak samples shown.

Mr. Grabell expects to finish his potato harvest this week. He has been hindered by inability to secure pickers. Pickers make good money, $1.50 to $2.00 a day and board, being the prevailing wages.

Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and the cure has been permanent. Others of our family have procured Doan's Kidney Pills at H. P. Dunn's drug store and have used them with very satisfactory results. There is more catarrh in the section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ## WRITES ABOUT CARE OF FEET

KNOWLEDGE OF HUMAN FOOT

This is Something Which Every Shoe Salesman Should Have to be Efficient in Business

P. J. Oberst, who sells the "Selz Royal Blue" shoes in Brainerd, has an interesting article in a trade paper and parts are herewith reproduced because of their general interest to the public.

"It is safe to predict," says Mr. Oberst, "that the time is not far distant when each and every shoe salesman who is engaged in fitting shoes will be obliged to comply with the laws which will be on our statute books, compelling each salesman to pass examination to show he possesses the proper knowledge of the human foot.

It is just as important that he be required to do this as it is for oculist to pass the required examination before he be allowed to practice his profession. We are living in an age of wonderful activity, and in order to keep abreast with this rapid pace we will be obliged to keep our feet from aches and pains. It is appalling to know that a great percentage of our people are suffering from some form of foot trouble, much of which can be easily cured by proper fitting shoes or by the use of arch supports adjusted to fit. Much of this trouble I speak of is of long standing, and can be easily traced to the ignorance, or rather the lack of knowledge, of the shoe salesman who is not competent in offering proper advice.

To this you may say, many persons will not allow you to properly fit their feet, as they demand shoes too small or too large, as the case may be. True enough, there are such people, but how about the man or woman who comes to your store and leaves the shoe fitting of their families to your judgment? Are you competent to be trusted in such cases? How many times have you had a customer use this common expression: 'I have rheumatism of the feet.' Now it is a well proven fact that not two out of ten such cases are rheumatism at all but instead a broken arch or flat-foot, which can be easily cured by properly fitting arch supports.

Another question we have often heard is: 'What is the matter with my feet? They ache when I am on them very much, yet my shoes seem to fit very well. I will never buy this brand or make of shoes again.' Now here's the point, they are just as liable to tell some other dealer that about a shoe which you, yourself, are selling.

You will find by examining the foot that the remedy lies in fitting the customer with arch supports as in many instances the arch of the foot has begun to fall, and let me say, right there, you gain a point for the shoes you are selling.

A man came to my store recently and told me how he had been cured of a case of supposed rheumatism of long standing by using arch supports and thanked me for putting him on the right track. He told me that I had made a new man of him."

ENGLISH FEMALE PORTERS.

Muscular Women Carry Heavy Loads in Covent Garden Market.

Visitors to Covent Garden market, the great flower market of London, will find that in addition to much floral beauty there is a wholesome, muscular athletic womanhood that is good to look upon to be found among the women porters. The flowers that are sold in huge quantities in this market are bought by retail flower dealers, to whose vans the flowers must be delivered in the surrounding streets. The work of carrying is done largely by women, and the Covent Garden woman porter is one of London's character studies.

These women, who carry loads of flowers on their heads, are hardworking, conscientious workers. As a rule, their hours are from 5 to 9 in the morning—not long perhaps, but during that time the women do what might well be considered a good day's work. It is not light work, as a woman porter frequently carries two dozen large pots of plants on her head over a distance of several hundred yards. Light and heavy loads may or may not come alternately, but all are accepted cheerfully. The payment, as a rule, is adequate, but depends upon the generosity of the temporary employer.

The powers of endurance these women possess are quite remarkable, and the work agrees with them. One woman recently pointed with pride to her daughter, a girl of twenty, with cheeks glowing with health and muscles that would do credit to any system of physical culture. The girl had been delicate, but a few weeks' work in the flower market caused a decided improvement, which increased as time went on.

A somewhat odd recognition of their work is received annually by these flower porters in the shape of a shawl and two aprons each, a gift from the Duchess of Bedford.—London Mirror.

Quaint Old Towns.

Cattaro is one of Austria-Hungary's few seaports, all on the Adriatic and mostly along that narrow coast strip bordering it on the east and known as Dalmatia. Pola, Zara, Sebenico, Spalato, Trau and Ragusa are other port towns. Pola, chief naval station and considered the Austrian Sebastopol, being described as "almost invulnerable." Ragusa was once a miniature republic under the suzerainty of Turkey. Spalato lay within the area of that famous palace which the Roman Emperor Diocletian reared and occupied after his abdication. Each of these towns is rich in Roman memories and ruins and alluringly located in a historic region.

Ruskin and Warships.

Ships of war had a stirring fascination for Ruskin up to the very end. Writing of his last days, Mr. W. G. Collingwood describes how: "Some pet books he would pore over or drowse over by the hour. The last of these was one in which he had a double interest, for it was about ships of war, and it was written by the kinsman of a dear friend. Some of the artists he had loved and helped had failed him or left him, but Burne-Jones was always true. So when a little boy lent him 'A Fleet In Being' he read and reread it, then got a copy for himself and might have learned it by heart, so long he pored over it."—London Chronicle.

Another Way Out.

Walter Damrosch, the musical conductor, played in his youth in a noted orchestra. He wore, as is the way with musicians, long hair and unusually bushy besides.

A thin haired violinist seated behind Mr. Damrosch in the orchestra used to take exception to the young man's coiffure. He said one day:

"Look here, Damrosch. Why don't you get your hair cut? Then maybe I could see the conductor."

Mr. Damrosch answered calmly over his shoulder:

"Why don't you learn to play better? Then you'd sit in front of me."

Painfully Particular.

"If you refuse me this time," he said, "I shall never ask you to be my wife again."

"Oh, please," replied the girl from Boston, "try to use better English. I never have been your wife. Why should you ask me to be your wife again?"—Chicago Herald.

MEMBERSHIP OF HOUSE TOO BIG

Congress Now Realizes Its Mistake in Enlarging Body.

DIFFICULT TO CORRECT IT.

Law of Self Preservation Would Prevent Representatives From Decreasing the Size—Business Conducted by a Comparative Few, and This Causes Much Absenteeism.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Oct. 17.—[Special.]—The Sixty-third congress has demonstrated that it was a great mistake to increase the membership. The house was too large when it consisted of 391 members, and the increase to 435 members has simply added to the confusion, caused delay, made it more difficult to obtain a quorum, reduced the efficiency of individual members and increased the control of the leaders who are chairmen of important committees.

It is difficult to see how this mistake can ever be corrected.

If the house should decide to reduce the membership to 300 it would make a good working legislative body, but it would mean throwing out of jobs 135 members. As the 135 could not be selected and nearly every man would fear that he would be a victim the natural law of self preservation will induce them to vote against any reduction.

Cause of Absenteeism.

A comparatively few conduct the business of the house. The others do not want to remain simply to be counted as a quorum and be compelled to listen to trifling discussions or long winded speeches solely for home consumption. It requires 218 members to make a quorum. Much of the time less than a quarter of that number are in the house. Most members realize that a great mistake was made in enlarging the membership of the house to its present proportions.

Middleman's Rakeoff.

A member of congress from one of the western states wants a committee of the house to investigate why it is that wheat sells for 20 cents more per bushel at the big grain centers than it does at the elevators when farmers deliver it for market. It is shown that the distance between the elevator and the big market cannot cost 20 cents a bushel for transportation.

It is the same old question that has been agitating the country for many years, the rakeoff of the middlemen who handle products between the producer and the consumer. Much of the high cost of living is explained by the profits of the various persons who handle the products of the farm before they reach the home of the consumer. It is not likely that congress will make any investigation as to the differences in the price of wheat or farm products, for it is plain to every person that middlemen get the difference.

Discouraging Junkets.

It is understood that Postmaster General Burleson does not look with favor upon the assembling of postmasters and other postal officials at different points for the purposes of holding conventions and discussing postal matters. Postmaster General Burleson looks upon these meetings, which are always held at the expense of the government, as more in the line of junkets and for the purpose of having vacations or a good time than anything else, and he regards that the good accomplished does not warrant the expense.

Nebraska Politics In It.

The independence of Senator Hitchcock and the differences which he has had with the present administration have often been traced to Nebraska politics. Senator Hitchcock and Secretary of State Bryan have not been in accord for a number of years. There were radical differences between them at the Baltimore convention and even before. Some people attribute Hitchcock's antagonism to certain presidential policies to this condition in Nebraska politics.

A Tardy Recognition.

The present congress has not shown much disposition toward erecting statues. Even the two bills which were coupled together providing for statues to Hamilton and Jefferson have not received the assent of the house, and it may be that the proposition for a tardy recognition of Nathan Hale, the Revolutionary patriot, will not receive attention. It has been proposed to appropriate $100,000 for a monument to him to be erected in the city of Washington.

Can Do Anything.

During the discussion of the parcel post there was an interesting exchange between Senator Bankhead of Alabama and Senator Martine of New Jersey, at one point of which Martine exclaimed:

"Great heavens! I believe we are big enough and broad enough and bright and intelligent enough to carry on the rural delivery and the parcel post."

"Yes," replied Bankhead; "we can do anything."

"Well," remarked Martine, "we can pretty nearly. With a Democratic majority there is no limit to our hopes and possibilities."

AN ORIGINAL ARGUMENT FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE.

Outline of Proposal of Hamilton Holt—"America's Destiny to Lead."

Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, in that publication presents what he considers is an original argument for universal peace under the title, "The Way to Disarm—A Practical Proposal."

Mr. Holt in part writes: "In his famous essay, 'Perpetual Peace,' published in 1795, Emmanuel Kant declared that we never can have universal peace until the world is politically organized, and it will never be possible to organize the world politically until the people, not the kings, rule."

"A careful study of the formation of the thirteen American colonies from separate states into our present compact Union discloses the fact that the nations today are in the same stage of development that the American colonies were about the time of their first confederation.

"Let the League of Peace be formed on the following five principles:

"First.—The nations of the league shall mutually agree to respect the territory and sovereignty of each other.

"Second.—All questions that cannot be settled by diplomacy shall be arbitrated.

"Third.—The nations of the league shall provide a periodical assembly to make all rules to become law unless vetoed by a nation within a stated period.

"Fourth.—The nations shall disarm to the point where the combined forces of the league shall be a certain per cent higher than those of the most heavily armed nation or alliance outside the league. Detailed rules for this pro rata disarmament shall be formulated by the assembly.

"Fifth.—Any member of the league shall have the right to withdraw on due notice or may be expelled by the unanimous vote of the others."

Mr. Holt concludes with this statement: "It would seem to be the manifest destiny of the United States to lead in the establishment of such a league."

The Sawfish.

The sawfish has a formidable weapon of killing in the flat, bony sword, armed on each side with about twenty large, bony teeth. The sawfish rushes into a shoal of fish and slashes to the right and to the left. In sea fights sometimes whales have been killed by sawfish, and the saw sometimes has been driven through the hull of a ship. The sawfish, common about the West Indies, goes into the gulf of Mexico and the Florida waters and sometimes ascends the Mississippi and other southern rivers, doing great havoc to the nets of fishermen. This species sometimes reaches a length of fifteen feet, a fourth of which measures the "saw."

TAKES BONES BACK TO CHINA

Hun Foy Gathers Remains of Lee Chung, Murdered in 1893 in Brainerd

BONES TAKEN FROM CEMETERY

China Only Country in World to so Gather Remains of Those Who Die Outside of Empire

Traveling from San Francisco, Cal., Hun Foy is in Brainerd today gathering the remains of Lee Chung, who was murdered in Brainerd in 1893, and the bones, exhumed from the local cemetery, have been placed in a wood and zinc lined box, hermetically sealed and will be shipped back to Lee Chung's former home in China.

Hun Foy comes originally from Hong Kong. He said it is the custom of the empire, to gather, ten years after death, the remains of all Chinamen who die outside the country. This practice, it is believed, is indulged in by China alone.

At Duluth the remains of ten Chinamen were collected. At St. Paul the remains of four are to be collected. The bones are placed in a box measuring 20 inches long, 14 inches wide and eight inches high. Arriving in China the family and relations assemble about the remains, there are appropriate ceremonies, the bones are placed in an urn and then taken to the cemetery, and placed beside the urn of his wife.

Hun Foy had permission from the state board of health to get the bodies. In Brainerd he had a permit from Dr. R. A. Beise, of the local board of health, and of Milton McPadden, secretary of the cemetery association. Assisted by an undertaker, D. E. Whitney, the grave was speedily located and the bones making a heap which would fill a suit case, were collected and placed in the box provided by Hun Foy.

Hun Foy is a well educated Chinaman who has been in the country over 40 years and is established in business in San Francisco.

GETS WAR MEDALS

John Romas, Candymaker at Olympia Candy Kitchen, Decorated by King of Greece

John Romas, who for some time has been a candymaker in the employ of Mike Nibi, formerly of the Olympia Candy Kitchen, left Brainerd yesterday for Virginia where he enters Mr. Nibi's employ there.

Before leaving, Mr. Romas proudly showed the two war medals conferred on him by the King of Greece. Romas was one of the company of Greek volunteers which mobilized at Minneapolis and which saw active fighting as soon as it landed in Greece.

He fought in the Turkish war and then later in the Greek and Bulgarian war, a medal signifying each event. As a lieutenant in the Greek army he was in the battle of Jannina in Epirus, where 110 cannon were taken and 33,000 Turks captured. It took three months to surround and take Jannina.

A deal was consummated this week whereby W. H. Jenkins of Pine River, and I. J. Mr. Brownell brings with him several carloads of stock, machinery, and feed, while Mr. Jenkins is now busy corralling over a hundred sheep and as many young cattle which he has bought thruout the county. The copartnership is to extend for a period of ten years, and with the enterprise and experience of both of these gentlemen, it is to be expected that one of the finest stock farms in this part of the country will be developed.

This noon Mrs. J. W. Bush took the train for Minneapolis to meet her boy. Mr. Bush is going on the 3:40 morning train Sunday, and the great mass of Brainerd fans will take that train.

On the 1:05 train for St. Paul today were scores of fans including Bill Dougherty, J. Quinn, H. Mahood, Frank G. Hall, Stewart Mills, Phil Davau, Pasty Woods, John Cummins, Arthur Wheelock, and others.

It is said the high school football team, after they have defeated Little Falls, will all take the train for Minneapolis to see Bush pitch.

It will surely be some "Bush Day" for Brainerd, in Minneapolis.

It is hoped enough of the band boys will turn out to make some showing at the game and thus help to advertise Brainerd as the biggest town on the baseball map.

HOBOS CAUSE TROUBLE

Governor A. O. Eberhart Urges Sheriffs of State to Prevent Robbery of Harvest Hands

To protect harvest hands from gangs of hobos who in the last few months have found "easy pickings" by robbing them of their hard earned wages, Governor Eberhart has written letters to the sheriffs of various counties along the route of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo railroads.

The letter reads:

"During the past few months there have been reported to this office a number of depredations committed by large bands of hobos. These bands often are armed, have broken open cars, murdered trainmen and committed numerous burglaries. They have been preying on the laborers coming from, and going into the harvest fields and have robbed them of their earnings.

"In view of these conditions it is necessary for you to take extraordinary measures to protect the communities by disarming or imprisoning these men. In case the county has not sufficient jail accommodations, it is essential that these bands be at least disarmed."

HOLD UP IN N. E. BRAINERD

Footpads Rob Leonard Swanson of $30 on Payday Night in Woods Near School

SHOVED A GUN IN HIS FACE

Happened near Midnight, Were About to Steal his Mackinaw Coat Too When Scared Away

Leonard Swanson, aged 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Swanson, 1602 Eighth street Northeast, was robbed of $30 to $35 on payday night near midnight in the woods in Northeast Brainerd east of the school house.

Young Swanson was returning home alone and following the path he has always taken. In the middle of the woods a man jumped out of the brush, snapped a revolver at his head while a companion held a search light in his eyes.

"Hold up your hands," was the gruff command. Swanson's hands promptly flew up.

One kept the gun in his face and the other went through his clothes and took from $30 to $35. He started to take off Swanson's mackinaw when a dog bounded through the brush and the robbers, becoming scared, left him.

"You run home and don't say a word to the police" was the parting injunction of the men.

One of them who held the gun was large and heavy set, had black curly hair, long black mustache and had a mask on. Swanson went to town and looked for a policeman. He found a man who said he was a policeman and together they looked through the brush but found nobody. Swanson works in the blacksmith shop and can ill afford to lose $30 or more.

COUNTY FAIR PROPOSITION

Pequot Paper Gives Reasons Why They Should Not be Disturbed in Possession

The Pequotian in its last issue has the following regarding rumors that an effort will be made to change the location of the county fair to Brainerd:

In conversation with a prominent citizen of Brainerd the other day, he informed me that the story was gaining prevalence in the city that Pequot was tired of holding the county fair, and was willing to give it up and he said, in his belief that one or two of the officers were willing to join in a reorganization with the headquarters at Brainerd. It is also stated that people in Brainerd have already chosen a site for the fair grounds.

The idea that the people of Pequot are willing to give up the fair is erroneous. There is probably not a single person, farmer or business man, who would be willing to see the county fair moved away from the village, and every effort on the part of Brainerd to secure the exposition will be fought to the limit. Brainerd should consider in this matter, her present pleasant relation with the people of Pequot, and rather than stir up a county wide controversy, drop this matter at once. It will be impossible for them to secure the necessary two-thirds vote to amend the articles of incorporation to enable them to remove the fair to Brainerd, and as long as the exposition is held each year, it cannot be removed otherwise.

That any of the officers would be willing to sacrifice the fair is undoubtedly a misstatement, and if such a one were found, he would be dropped from the association. Brainerd is our county seat, and we are proud of its progressive spirit and enjoy the friendship and confidence of many of its citizens and business men. We admire its efforts to enhance its business and add to its prosperity, but we, the citizens of the north end of Crow Wing county will never allow it to confiscate what we have built up by years of effort and sacrifice, the institution that Brainerd once abandoned as a failure.

A NEW COURTHOUSE AND JAIL

"The Only Effective Place for the Voice of the Citizen is in Voting for Bonds," Says Henderson

The question of bonds for the above will be one of the local issues to be decided November 3.

In the submission of this question the County Board is not only acting within its authority, but only thus can it show justice to all in this kind of a question and clear itself of the responsibility of possibly repressing or overriding the wish of a majority. The submission does not necessarily indicate their personal approval of the measure; and, anyway, their personal attitude towards it is no more to the voters than that of any other private citizen.

So a decent respect for our government, that is, for ourselves, demands that it get a fair hearing, or consideration in order to have an intelligent vote. So far we have observed no discussion, for or against, has appeared through the press.

Talks with a number of farmers in different localities gives the impression that it is not getting, nor is it likely to get, such consideration. It is simply being sat down on by a large proportion of country voters. All they see in it is an increase of taxes, and they feel no peculiar interest in promoting that cause. They point to the fact that we have not yet paid for the present courthouse; and to the ever-increasing demand for road improvement, etc., and they cannot appreciate any urgent need for a new courthouse.

The jail seems to be a little different proposition. Not that there is any particular sentiment to do the nice thing by the class of citizens who generally occupy such institution, but seeing it has been condemned by the state authorities and is to be voted for separate from the courthouse question it will likely receive different support.

But there is really another side to this new courthouse question. Despite all the graft (the paying of something for nothing) and the inefficiency of so much of public service in the expenditure of public funds in the past, such expenditure on the whole, has produced as profitable returns, at least, as the average capital invested in private industries. That large part of these returns have been diverted into private pockets does not alter the fact of production; and not until the people at large look more closely into the nature and extent of such returns and how they become diverted into private pockets will they come to realize the actual benefit of society or government and understand that when economically expended the more taxes we pay the better we are off, provided the levy be equitably distributed according to benefits.

The point wished to be made here is that not only do the material public improvements, as roads, bridges, schools, streets, water and light, etc., bring returns in increased land values but even in a greater degree, being more fundamental, does a faithful and efficient service in the administration of justice and the other departments of county affairs. But such faithful, efficient service cannot be obtained at its best without the best facilities, as in building and equipment, comparing not only with the present, but with prospective needs, and comparing more or less favorably with that known to exist in other counties of similar standing and resources. We venture the assertion that the present needs of Crow Wing county in that line were scarcely in sight when the present courthouse was planned and erected, to say nothing of those we are right up against due to the expansion inevitably caused by the discovery of more of our great natural resources.

A public building, as a county court house, or city hall, more than anything else perhaps in which public funds are invested, reflects the spirit and tastes of the respective communities, and, their conception of what the city or county means to them; and when designed, constructed, and equipped along modern lines, it not only reacts upon officials, increasing their sense of the honor and responsibility of their position, but in a similar degree reacts upon every resident or taxpayer of the county who visits it giving us something to be proud of, and giving an ideal of style and comfort and convenience, which will be carried in many cases unconsciously to the homes and private business, to their financial benefit and higher appreciation of their homes and of being a citizen of such a county. The natural effect of such a feeling is surely increased land values.

It should also be kept in mind that our assessed valuation has more than doubled since two years ago.

This is not a plea for a new courthouse, but for a fair consideration of the question. It is not enough to think, "We can't afford it." We should also think, "Can we afford not to have it?" The only effective place for the voice of the citizen is in the voting for bonds.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Columbia

Every good picture has something new in it, but there never was a motion picture that was a good offering that did not have something of the old. Perhaps our greatest pleasure in any story comes from the minds adventure in the places that it creates. The average mind soon gets tired of walking for pleasure down through the same old meadows and lanes, and to such, a brand new path leading out unexpectedly to places that have never been seen before is delightful. The spectators experience watching the new Esanney offering "Under Royal Patronage" will be very much like that of one taking a new walk. (When you get well into it you will find that everything around is fresh and new and stirring you to a lively attention of a new adventure. A better drama seldom has been put into a two reel feature. The comedy promises to be a good one as is also the other drama. Special attention is called to the picture program and the musical accompaniment for Sunday and Monday. It will be a surprise.

TAKES BONES BACK TO CHINA

Hun Foy Gathers Remains of Lee Chung, Murdered in 1893 in Brainerd

BONES TAKEN FROM CEMETERY

China Only Country in World to so Gather Remains of Those Who Die Outside of Empire

Traveling from San Francisco, Cal., Hun Foy is in Brainerd today gathering the remains of Lee Chung, who was murdered in Brainerd in 1893, and the bones, exhumed from the local cemetery, have been placed in a wood and zinc lined box, hermetically sealed and will be shipped back to Lee Chung's former home in China.

Hun Foy comes originally from Hong Kong. He said it is the custom of the empire, to gather, ten years after death, the remains of all Chinese who die outside the country. This practice, it is believed, is indulged in by China alone.

At Duluth the remains of ten Chinamen were collected. At St. Paul the remains of four are to be collected. The bones are placed in a box measuring 20 inches long, 14 inches wide and eight inches high. Arriving in China the family and relations assemble about the remains, there are appropriate ceremonies, the bones are placed in an urn and then taken to the cemetery, and placed beside the urn of his wife.

Hun Foy had permission from the state board of health to get the bodies. In Brainerd he had a permit from Dr. R. A. Boise, of the local board of health, and of Milton McFadden, secretary of the cemetery association. Assisted by an undertaker, D. E. Whitney, the grave was speedily located and the bones making a heap which would fill a suit case, were collected and placed in the box provided by Hun Foy.

Hun Foy is a well educated Chinese man who has been in the country over 40 years and is established in business in San Francisco.

GETS WAR MEDALS

John Romas, Candymaker at Olympia Candy Kitchen, Decorated by King of Greece

John Romas, who for some time has been a candymaker in the employ of Mike Nibi, formerly of the Olympia Candy Kitchen, left Brainerd yesterday for Virginia where he enters Mr. Nibi's employ there.

Before leaving, Mr. Romas proudly showed the two war medals conferred on him by the King of Greece. Romas was one of the company of Greek volunteers which mobilized at Minneapolis and which saw active fighting as soon as it landed in Greece.

He fought in the Turkish war and then later in the Greek and Bulgarian war, a medal signifying each event. As a lieutenant in the Greek army he was in the battle of Jannina in Epirus, where 110 cannon were taken and 33,000 Turks captured. It took three months to surround and take Jannina.

STOCK RANCH NEAR EMILY

Pine River Sentinel Tells of Formation of Stock Company to Finance Deal

A deal was consummated this week whereby W. H. Jenkins of Pine River, and J. J. Brownell of North Dakota, became the principal investors in a copartnership to engage in general farming and stock raising on the Eagle Lake Ranch near Emily, says the Sentinel. Mr. Brownell brings with him several carloads of stock, machinery, and feed, while Mr. Jenkins is now busy corralling over a hundred sheep and as many young cattle which he has bought thruout the county. The co-partnership is to extend for a period of ten years, and with the enterprise and experiences of both of these gentlemen, it is to be expected that one of the finest stock farms in this part of the country will be developed.

CROWD LEAVES TOWN TODAY

Bush to be in Minneapolis on Milwaukee Road at Seven O'clock in the Morning

Leslie Joe Bush will surely pitch in Sunday's big game in Minneapolis, says A. M. Cleland, Minneapolis, special to G. W. Mosier. That sets at rest all doubts about Bush.

This noon Mrs. J. W. Bush took the train for Minneapolis to meet her boy. Mr. Bush is going on the 3:40 morning train Sunday, and the great mass of Brainerd fans will take that train.

On the 1:05 train for St. Paul today were scores of fans including Bill Dougherty, J. Quinn, H. Mahood, Frank G. Hall, Stewart Mills, Phil Davenau, Faaty Woods, John Cummins, Arthur Wheelock, and others.

It is said the high school football team, after they have defeated Little Falls, will all take the train for Minneapolis to see Bush pitch.

It will surely be some "Bush Day" for Brainerd in Minneapolis.

It is hoped enough of the band boys will turn out to make some showing at the game and thus help to advertise Brainerd as the biggest town on the baseball map.

HOBOS CAUSE TROUBLE

Governor A. O. Eberhart Urges Sheriffs of State to Prevent Robbery of Harvest Hands

To protect harvest hands from gangs of hobos who in the last few months have found "easy pickings" by robbing them of their hard earned wages, Governor Eberhart has written letters to the sheriffs of various counties along the route of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo railroads.

The letter reads: "During the past few months there have been reported to this office a number of depredations committed by large bands of hobos. These bands often are armed, have broken open cars, murdered trainmen and committed numerous burglaries. They have been preying on the laborers coming from, and going into the harvest fields and have robbed them of their earnings.

"In view of these conditions it is necessary for you to take extraordinary measures to protect the communities by disarming or imprisoning these men. In case the county has not sufficient jail accommodations, it is essential that these bands be at least disarmed."

HOLD UP IN N. E. BRAINERD

Footpads Rob Leonard Swanson of $30 on Payday Night in Woods Near School

SHOVED A GUN IN HIS FACE

Happened near Midnight, Were About to Steal his Mackinaw Coat Too When Scared Away

Leonard Swanson, aged 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Swanson, 1602 Eighth street Northeast, was robbed of $30 to $35 on payday night near midnight in the woods in Northeast Brainerd east of the school house.

Young Swanson was returning home alone and following the path he has always taken. In the middle of the woods a man jumped out of the brush, snapped a revolver at his head while a companion held a search light in his eyes.

"Hold up your hands," was the gruff command. Swanson's hands promptly flew up.

One kept the gun in his face and the other went through his clothes and took from $30 to $35. He started to take off Swanson's mackinaw when a dog bounded through the brush and the robbers, becoming scared, left him.

"You run home and don't say a word to the police" was the parting injunction of the men.

One of them who held the gun was large and heavy set, had black curly hair, long black mustache and had a mask on. Swanson went to town and looked for a policeman. He found a man who said he was a policeman and together they looked through the brush but found nobody. Swanson works in the blacksmith shop and can ill afford to lose $30 or more.

COUNTY FAIR PROPOSITION

Pequot Paper Gives Reasons Why They Should Not be Disturbed in Possession

The Pequotonian in its last issue has the following regarding rumors that an effort will be made to change the location of the county fair to Brainerd:

In conversation with a prominent citizen of Brainerd the other day, he informed me that the story was gaining prevalence in the city that Pequot was tired of holding the county fair, and was willing to give it up and he said, in his belief that one or two of the officers were willing to join in a reorganization with the headquarters at Brainerd. It is also stated that people in Brainerd have already chosen a site for the fair grounds.

The idea that the people of Pequot are willing to give up the fair is erroneous. There is probably not a single person, farmer or business man, who would be willing to see the county fair moved away from the village, and every effort on the part of Brainerd to secure the exposition will be fought to the limit. Brainerd should consider in this matter, her present pleasant relation with the people of Pequot, and rather than stir up a county wide controversy, drop this matter at once. It will be impossible for them to secure the necessary two-thirds vote to amend the articles of incorporation to enable them to remove the fair to Brainerd, and as long as the exposition is held each year, it cannot be removed otherwise.

That any of the officers would be willing to sacrifice the fair is undoubtedly a misstatement, and if such a one were found, he would be dropped from the association. Brainerd is our county seat, and we are proud of its progressive spirit and enjoy the friendship and confidence of many of its citizens and business men. We admire its efforts to enhance its business and add to its prosperity, but we, the citizens of the north end of Crow Wing county will never allow it to confiscate what we have built up by years of effort and sacrifice, the institution that Brainerd once abandoned as a failure.

DENOUNCE AFRICAN REBELS

Meeting of Commandants of Free State Requests Mobilization.

London, Oct. 17.—At a meeting of commandants representing all the Free State north of Bloemfontein, at Kroonstad, a dispatch to the Reuter Telegram company from Pretoria says, "a resolution was adopted unanimously denouncing as a blot on the honor of the Free State the rebellion started in the northwest of the Cape provinces by Colonel Maritz.

"The resolution requested a mobilization of the burghers to crush the rebellion.

"General Jan Christian Smuts, minister of defense, thanked the commandants for their tender of support."

The home of Charles Bogren, 1406 Laurel street, in Southeast Brainerd, was entered by thieves last evening and $25 stolen.

Mr. Bogren was at the Gustafson store, 1626 Oak street, telephoning to the police for help to find the robbers. So far no clue has been found.

A NEW COURTHOUSE AND JAIL

"The Only Effective Place for the Voice of the Citizen is in Voting for Bonds," Says Henderson

The question of bonds for the above will be one of the local issues to be decided November 3.

In the submission of this question the County Board is not only acting within its authority, but only thus can it show justice to all in this kind of a question and clear itself of the responsibility of possibly repressing or overriding the wish of a majority. The submission does not necessarily indicate their personal approval of the measure; and, anyway, their personal attitude towards it is no more to the voters than that of any other private citizen.

So a decent respect for our government, that is, for ourselves, demands that it get a fair hearing, or consideration in order to have an intelligent vote. So far we have observed no discussion, for or against, has appeared through the press.

Talks with a number of farmers in different localities gives the impression that it is not getting, nor is it likely to get, such consideration. It is simply being sat down on by a large proportion of country voters. All they see in it is an increase of taxes, and they feel no peculiar interest in promoting that cause. They point to the fact that we have not yet paid for the present courthouse; and to the ever-increasing demand for road improvement, etc., and they cannot appreciate any urgent need for a new courthouse.

The jail seems to be a little different proposition. Not that there is any particular sentiment to do the nice thing by the class of citizens who generally occupy such institution, but seeing it has been condemned by the state authorities and is to be voted for separate from the courthouse question it will likely receive different support.

But there is really another side to this new courthouse question. ## THE TWO NEIGHBORS.

One of Them Gives His Version of the Condition of Affairs.

My neighbor owns a dog that begins barking at 10:30 o'clock at night, my retreating hour, and continues until relieved by the rooster at 4:30 in the morning. And every morning my neighbor greets me with the words, "Ain't these fine nights for sleeping?" My neighbor harbors the aforesaid bird of dawn. This fowl is one of a flock of twenty-seven feathered bipeds of both sexes. There were twenty-nine in the flock originally, but I privately murdered and ate two of them. These chickens scratch in my garden from March 1 to Nov. 30, make a board walk of my veranda every day it doesn't snow, roost on my grape arbor and make themselves at home generally. Neighbor says, "There's nothin' I like better 'n workin' with chickens, don't you?"

My neighbor had five offspring—four boys and one in dresses yet. These amuse themselves by climbing my fruit trees, breaking my fence, stoning my aunt's white cat, playing Olympic games on my lawn, etc. Neighbor says, "Don't you just can't keep from lovin' toddlers like them there? What'd the world be without children?"

My neighbor owns a phonograph, 1896 model. It has six records—"Washington Post," "Shall We Gather at the River," "Annie Rooney," "Listen to the Mocking Bird"—that's four, and you wouldn't believe the other two. He plays the machine only on hot nights, when the windows are open. My neighbor says, "Ain't it a wonderful invention? It's sure the marvel of the age. I never get tired listening to it, do you?"

My neighbor has borrowed in the last six months my jackplane, my boot-jack, my box of liver pills, my razor, my Bible, my ice cream freezer, six bars of soap and other articles. He has never returned any of them. Neighbor says, "I believe in being neighborly, don't you?"

Now I'm in a quandary, and this is what I'm quandering about: I don't want to be a grouch, but I'm at the limit of endurance. I am about to have revenge on my neighbor—I'm going to sell out and move away. Do you think I would be acting unchristianly in so doing? Give me a word of advice.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

JAPAN'S DARING WHALERS.

They Risk Drowning to Escape the Infuriated Animal's Tail.

Many of the Japanese whalers are most expert and daring men. After a whale has been cornered, harpooned and is slowly giving out from exhaustion the nimble expert of the whaling crew must prove his mettle.

The skilled Jap, after jumping upon the animal's back and cutting two gashes in the head, one on each side, through which a rope must be run and tied, cannot always perform his work in one trial. Often the animal makes a deep dive. But the little Jap must hold fast to his quarry and dive also, trusting to his lungs will last as long as the whale's.

The Jap is safer from being drowned than from being crushed by the infuriated animal's tail. If the little Jap let go it usually means death, so he hangs on to the diving quarry. Frequently these whalers lose their lives from drowning, but the members of their crew look upon this misfortune with something of a fatalistic regard.

But the main business in hand is the capture of the whale. As the fight progresses and the maddened, frightened animal grows weaker and finally is dying the boat crews row closer to the body and pray for the ease of the departing spirit. Members of the crew will call out the words "Joraku, Joraku, Joraku!" and on the third day after the animal has been hauled ashore a service is held and prayers offered for the animal's future contentment in spirit.

As soon as the animal has been towed to the shore line he is cut up, the Japs making huge excavations and penetrating inside the animal's body as though entering a mine shaft or gallery and eventually making their exit, all covered with blood. It is a gruesome sight, but is looked upon purely as a matter of course among the Jap whalers.—Exchange.

The Trey O' Hearts

A Novelized Version of the Motion Picture Drama of the Same Name
Produced by the Universal Film Co.

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Author of "The Fortune Hunter," "The Brass Band," "The Black Bag," etc.

Illustrated with Photographs from the Picture Production

Copyright, 1914, by Louis Joseph Vance

Roaring, with its miller cut out, the pursuing car swept up and baffled him, bringing its right forward wheel up beside the left rear wheel of his car, then more slowly forging up until, with its weight, bulk and superior power, it forced him inch by inch to the right, toward the tracks, until his right-hand wheels left the road and ran on uneven turf, until the left-hand wheels as well lost grip on the road metal, until the car began to dip on the slope to the tracks.

He heard the far hoot-toot of a freight locomotive.

There followed a maniac moment, when the world was upside down. Alan's car slipped and skidded, swung sideways with frightful momentum toward the railroad tracks, caught its wheels against the ties, and.

The sun swung in the heavens like a ball on a string. There was a crash, a roar. . . . There was nothing—oblivion.

The car had turned turtle, pinning Rose and Alan beneath it.

"Alan!" she gasped. "You are not killed?"

"No—not even much hurt, I fancy," he replied. "And you?"

"Not much—"

The deep-throated roar of the locomotive bellowing danger silenced him. He closed his eyes.

Then abruptly the weight was lifted from his chest. He saw a man dragging Rose from under the machine, and saw that the man was Marrophat. And almost immediately someone lifted his head and shoulders, caught him with two hands beneath his arm pits and drew him clear of the machine.

And the face of his rescuer was the face of Judith Trine.

The crash he had expected, of the car being crumpled up by the oncoming locomotive, did not follow.

As he scrambled to his feet, his first glance was up the track, and discovered the train slowing to a halt.

His next was one of wonder for the countenance of Judith Trine as she stood, at a little distance, regarding him; her look almost illegible, a curious compound of passions coloring it—relief, regret, hatred, love.

His third glance desecrated beyond her the figures of Marrophat carrying Rose in his arms, stumbling as he ran toward his car on the highroad.

He moved precipitately to pursue, but found his way barred by Judith.

"Not!" she cried violently. "No, you shall not!"

Her hand sought the grip of a revolver that protruded from her pocket. With a short, hysterical gasp, he began to laugh.

"What!" he taunted her—"again?"

"Think what you like!" she cried in a frenzy. "You saved me once—now I spare you. We're quits. But next time—"

"O—rot!" he interjected. "You will never have the courage to pull that trigger when I'm helpless in your hands!"

The hot blood mantled her exquisite face like red fire. She caught her breath with a sob, then flung wildly at him:

"Well, if you must know—it's true. I can't bring myself to kill you. I would to God I could. But I can't. For all that, you shall die—I could not save you if I would! And this I promise you—you shall never see Rose again before you die!"

And while he stood gaping, she swung from him and ran, quickly covering the little distance between him and the car.

As she jumped into this and dropped down upon the seat beside her half-conscious sister, Marrophat swung the car away.

It vanished in a dust-cloud as through railroad employes surrounded and assailed him with clamorous questions.

Coke Burning Cars.

Coke burning automobiles for omnibuses and motor truck work have appeared on the streets in London. The boiler and engine are under a hood in front of the driver, giving the appearance of an ordinary automobile, but the hood is rather large. The coke is burned under a boiler to make steam which in turn runs a steam engine. The coke burners, holding enough fuel for 50 or 100 miles' running, are in contact round the boiler, and an automatic arrangement feeds the coke into the fire. The gas or light smoke passes through a cooler before going into the air and gives so little smell and smoke that the stringent police regulations are complied with.—Exchange.

NATIONAL HYMNS.

Inspiring Anthems of the Great States of Europe

SING THE PRIDE OF COUNTRY.

Patriotic Airs of Austria, Russia, France, Germany, England and Norway—Our Own "My Country," "Tis of Thee," and "Yankee Doodle."

The Austrian national anthem is one of the finest in existence. It was composed in 1797 by that great national composer, Haydn, who is chiefly known to concert goers by his magnificent oratorio "The Creation," in which occurs the splendid and florid chorus, "The Heavens Are Telling." The anthem was based upon an old national song, but Haydn made it a thing of beauty. It is the only national anthem composed by a musician of the foremost rank.

But the song which is sung in cities by civilians is not always, or, indeed generally, the one sung by the soldiers who have to bear the brunt of battle and siege and march. The battle song of the Austrian soldier is "Prinz Eugen der edle Ritter," which tells how the noble cavalier, Prince Eugene of Savoy, laid siege to and captured Belgrade from the Turks in 1717. It ought to be a good song for the purpose, for it was actually written in the trenches before Belgrade.

Probably the most stately national anthem is the Russian. Its very title, "God the All Terrible," seems to strike a heroic strain. Sung by a great mass of peasant soldiers with simple fervor its effect is grand in the extreme. Played upon the great organ in the cathedral at Moscow it sounds like a prayer. Not only are the words very poetical, but the tune is forceful and haunting.

Of course, the greatest of all war songs pure and simple is unquestionably "The Marseillaise." What memories it has clinging to its fervidly patriotic words! It was the song of the French revolution and did more to bring down the dynasty of the Bourbons than half a dozen army corps. It was called by the name which still is universally applied to it, because the men—and women—of Marseilles, the port of the Mediterranean, marched all the way to Paris, singing it as they went. Its first fruits were reaped a few days after their arrival, when the hated Basille fell to its strains. It is now the national anthem of republican France.

In Germany no patriotic song has been sung with such fervor as the famous battle hymn of the Germans, "Die Wacht am Rhein" ("The Watch on the Rhine"). It was written in 1840, but remained practically unknown until the outbreak of the war with France, when it was sung by every soldier and every man, woman and child throughout the German empire. "The Watch on the Rhine" was to Germany at that time what "The Marseillaise" was to France—a soul stirring composition which made men eager to take up arms and fight for the cause which they thought was right.

England's national anthem is a Georgian product and originally opened with the words, "God bless great George, our king." It has been honored by Beethoven with seven variations for the piano, and it is introduced into his "Battle Symphony." On the whole, perhaps, the tune to which is sung "God Save the King" has probably the largest circulation of any tune in the world. Then there is "Rule, Britannia," which was composed by Dr. Arne, the English musician, who wrote several operas. "Rule, Britannia," was included in the "Masque of Alfred," a musical farce produced in 1740.

Just as the Austrian national anthem is the only one set to music by a great composer, so the Norwegian anthem is the only one whose words were written by a real poet. This was Bjornstjerne Bjornson. On one occasion he was asked when he got the greatest pleasure out of his fame as a national poet. He replied: "It was when a delegation from the Right came to my house in Christiania and smashed all my windows. Because when they had done all the damage they could and were starting home again they felt they ought to sing something. So they began to sing, 'Yes, We Love This Land of Ours.' They could do nothing else. They were obliged to sing the song of the man whom they had attacked."

Singularly enough, the country which has the best variety of patriotic anthems is the country which has had less warfare than any other, the United States of America. Her songs are fine.

The real national anthem of America is "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and it is sung to the same tune as "God Save the King." But perhaps the real, genuine, rock bottom anthem of America, after all, is the famous "Yankee Doodle," which has the great advantage of being a real marching song, which not only helps to keep the men's spirits from flagging, but also helps to keep them in step. A band playing "Yankee Doodle" would take a regiment ten miles farther than any other tune.—London Tit-Bits.

HINDU EGG DANCE.

Curious and Difficult Feat Performed by Girl Jugglers.

Of the many wonderful feats performed by Hindu jugglers one of the most remarkable is the egg dance. Usually it is executed by a girl fantastically dressed. She makes use of a willow wheel, around which at equal distances are threads, and at the end of each thread there is a noose held open by a bead.

This wheel the girl places on her head, while she carries a basket of eggs on her arm. When the music strikes up she begins to dance, and the wheel begins to spin around. She then takes an egg from the basket, places it in one of the thread nooses and throws it from her with sufficient force to draw the knot tight. The spinning of the wheel keeps the thread stretched with the egg at the end of it.

She then takes another egg from the basket, places it in another noose and repeats this until there is an egg in every noose. Her fantastic costume, her perfect motion and all the eggs swinging on stretched threads at once present a curious sight.

It requires much art to execute the dance, for one false step would cause the eggs to be dashed together and the dancer to be disgraced.

After dancing for some time with all the eggs swinging round her head she takes them out of the noose one by one, all the time keeping the wheel balanced and in motion, and again places them in the basket on her arm.

After the performance the spectators are allowed to examine the eggs to see that they are real.—London Ideas.

Historic Clontarf.

Clontarf is one of the most historic spots in Ireland. It was there that on Good Friday, April 23, 1014, Brian Boru and the men of Munster, Connaught and Meath fought the Danes.

Brian was killed in his tent; Sigurd, earl of Orkney and Cathness, perished also, and 11,000 Irishmen and 13,000 Danes are said to have fallen. Victory remained with the Irish, but the Danes reoccupied Dublin. In modern times O'Connell's monster meetings for repeal were to have culminated at Clontarf, but the meeting was prohibited by the government, and O'Connell was put upon his trial for conspiracy and convicted, though the verdict was eventually reversed by the house of lords.—London Chronicle.

When Flour Was Scarce.

The scarcity of flour drove the privy council to some remarkable sumptuary recommendations in 1795. All families were begged to give up puddings and pies and the privy councilors announced that they promised to set an example by confining themselves to fish, meat, vegetables and household bread, partly made of rye. One-quarter loaf a week was recommended as the maximum allowance per head, and the loaf should be put on the table for each to help himself so that there might be no waste. Rich people were urged to do without soups and gravies, to take only the prime cuts and leave the rest for the poor. The poor should be taught how to make soup and rice pudding, rice being a new food which until then had been little used.—London Chronicle.

is the canal of life but it becomes a sewer if clogged up. All life consists of building up and tearing down and just in the same manner that the blood carries to the various parts of the body the food that the cells need for building up, so it is compelled to carry away the waste material that's torn down. These waste materials are poisonous and destroy us unless the liver and kidneys are stimulated into refreshed and vigorous life.

THE TWO NEIGHBORS.

One of Them Gives His Version of the Condition of Affairs.

My neighbor owns a dog that begins barking at 10:30 o'clock at night, my retreating hour, and continues until relieved by the rooster at 4:30 in the morning. And every morning my neighbor greets me with the words, "Ain't these fine nights for sleeping?"

My neighbor harbors the aforesaid kind of dawdling. This fowl is one of a flock of twenty-seven feathered bipeds of both sexes. There were twenty-nine in the flock originally, but I privately murdered and ate two of them. These chickens scratch in my garden from March 1 to Nov. 30, make a board walk of my veranda every day it doesn't snow, roost on my grape arbor and make themselves at home generally. Neighbor says, "There's nothin' I like better 'n workin' with chickens, don't you?"

My neighbor had five offspring—four boys and one in dresses yet. These amuse themselves by climbing my fruit trees, breaking my fence, stoning my aunt's white cat, playing Olympic games on my lawn, etc. Neighbor says: "Don't you jest can't keep from lovin' toddlers like them there? What'd the world be without children?"

My neighbor owns a phonograph, 1500 model. It has six records—"Washington Post," "Shall We Gather at the River," "Annie Rooney," "Listen to the Mocking Bird"—that's four, and you wouldn't believe the other two. He plays the machine only on hot nights, when the windows are open. My neighbor says: "Ain't it a wonderful invention? It's sure the marvel of the age. I never get tired listening to it, do you?"

My neighbor has borrowed in the last six months my jackknife, my boot-jack, my box of liver pills, my razor, my Bible, my ice cream freezer, six bars of soap and other articles. He has never returned any of them. Neighbor says, "I believe in being neighborly, don't you?"

Now I'm in a quandary, and this is what I'm wondering about: I don't want to be a crouch, but I'm at the limit of endurance. I am about to have revenge on my neighbor—I'm going to sell out and move away. Do you think I would be acting unchristianly in so doing? Give me a word of advice.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

JAPAN'S DARING WHALERS.

They Risk Drowning to Escape the Infuriated Animal's Tail.

Many of the Japanese whalers are most expert and daring men. After a whale has been cornered, harpooned and is slowly giving out from exhaustion the nimble expert of the whaling crew must prove his mettle.

The skilled Jap, after jumping upon the animal's back and cutting down gashes in the head, one on each side, through which a rope must be run and tied, cannot always perform his work in one trial. Often the animal makes a deep dive. But the little Jap must hold fast to his quarry and dive also, trusting to his fates that his own air supply in his lungs will last as long as the whale's.

The Jap is safer from being drowned than from being crushed by the infuriated animal's tail. If the little Jap let go it usually means death, so he hangs on to the diving quarry. Frequently these whalers lose their lives from drowning, but the members of their crew look upon this misfortune with something of a fatalistic regard.

But the main business in hand is the capture of the whale. As the fight progresses and the maddened, frightened animal grows weaker and finally is dying the boat crews row closer to the body and pray for the ease of the departing spirit. Members of the crew will call out the words "Joraku, Joraku, Joraku" and on the third day after the animal has been hauled ashore a service is held and prayers offered for the animal's future contentment in spirit.

As soon as the animal has been towed to the shore line he is cut up, the Japs making huge excavations and penetrating inside the animal's body as though entering a mine shaft or gallery and eventually making their exit, all covered with blood. It is a gruesome sight, but is looked upon purely as a matter of course among the Jap whalers.—Exchange.

Roaring, with its muffler cut out, the pursuing car swept up and baffled him, bringing its right forward wheel up beside the left rear wheel of his car, then more slowly forging up until, with its weight, bulk and superior power, it forced him inch by inch to the right, toward the tracks, until his right-hand wheels left the road and ran on uneven turf, until the left-hand wheels as well lost grip on the road metal, until the car began to dip on the slope to the tracks.

He heard the far hoot-toot of a freight locomotive . . .

There followed a maniac moment, when the world was upside down. Alan's car slipped and skidded, swung sideways with frightful momentum toward the railroad tracks, caught its wheels against the ties, and . . .

The sun swung in the heavens like a ball on a string. There was a crash, a roar . . . There was nothing—oblivion.

The car had turned turtle, pinning Rose and Alan beneath it.

"Alan!" she gasped. "You are not killed?"

"No—not even much hurt, I fancy," he replied. "And you?"

"Not much—"

The deep-throated roar of the locomotive following danger silenced him. He closed his eyes.

Then abruptly the weight was lifted from his chest. He saw a man dragging Rose from under the machine, and saw that the man was Marrophat. And almost immediately someone lifted his head and shoulders, caught him with two hands beneath his arm pits and drew him clear of the machine.

And the face of his rescuer was the face of Judith Trine.

The crash he had expected, of the car being crumpled up by the oncoming locomotive, did not follow.

As he scrambled to his feet, his first glance was up the track, and discovered the train slowing to a halt.

His next was one of wonder for the countenance of Judith Trine as she stood, at a little distance, regarding him; her look almost illegible, a curious compound of passions coloring it—relief, regret, hatred, love . . .

His third glance described beyond her the figures of Marrophat carrying Rose in his arms, stumbling as he ran toward his car on the highroad.

He moved precipitately to pursue but found his way barred by Judith.

"Not!" she cried violently. "No, you shall not!"

Her hand sought the grip of a revolver that protruded from her pocket. With a short, hysterical gasp, he began to laugh.

"What!" he taunted her—"again?"

"Think what you like!" she cried in a frenzy. "You saved me once—now I spare you. We're quits. But next time—"

"O—rot!" he interjected. "You will never have the courage to pull that trigger when I'm helpless in your hands!"

The hot blood mantled her exquisite face like red fire. She caught her breath with a sob, then flung wildly at him:

"Well, if you must know—it's true. I can't bring myself to kill you. I would to God I could. But I can't. For all that, you shall die—I could not save you if I would! And this I promise you—you shall never see Rose again before you die!"

And while he stood gaping, she swung from him and ran, quickly covering the little distance between him and the car.

As she jumped into this and dropped down upon the seat beside her half-conscious sister, Marrophat swung the car away.

It vanished in a dust-cloud as a

All families were begged to give up puddings and pies and the privy councilors announced that they promised to set an example by confining themselves to fish, meat, vegetables and household bread, partly made of rye. One-quarter loaf a week was recommended as the maximum allowance per head, and the loaf should be put on the table for each to help himself so that there might be no waste. Rich people were urged to do without soups and gravies, to take only the prime cuts and leave the rest for the poor. The poor should be taught how to make soup and rice pudding, rice being a new food which until then had been little used.—London Chronicle.

The Law of Gravity.

"Silence in the court!" thundered the judge, and the laughter died away.
"Mr. Bailiff," continued the instructions from the bench, "reject the next man who defies the law of gravity."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Fair Question.

"It is my aim in life," he said, "to make men happier." "Why not women?" she asked. Exchange.

YOUR BLOOD

is the canal of life but it becomes a sewer if clogged up. All life consists of building up and tearing down and just in the same manner that the blood carries to the various parts of the body the food that the cells need for building up, so it is compelled to carry away the waste material that's torn down. These waste materials are poisonous and destroy us unless the liver and kidneys are stimulated into refreshed and vigorous life.

DR. PIERCE'S Golden Medical Discovery

is the balancing power—a vitalizing power. It acts on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition—on the purifying filters which clean the blood. Thus fresh vitalized blood feeds the nerves, heart and brain. This well known alternative relieves catarrh of the stomach and headache accompanying same, and has been successful for more than a generation as a tonic and body-builder. It builds up the rundown system. You need it if you are always "catching cold"—or have catarrh of the nose and throat. The active medicinal principles of American-Indian roots are extracted without alcohol and you can obtain this tonic in liquid or tablet form at any drug store or send 50 cents in 1-cent stamps for trial box of tablets.
